MR. FITCH.

North Hadley 1 mo. 27th 1848.

Respected Friend, the Editor of the New England Historical and Genealogical Register.

From the "Register," Vol. I., page 315, I copy the following; viz.:

"In the year 1660, the Rev. James Fitch, the first pastor of the church of Saybrook, with the greater part of his church, moved from Saybrook to Norwich. Said Mr. Fitch continued to be pastor of said church at Norwich, until by reason of his age and infirmity he resigned his said office about the year 1696, and in 1702 removed to the town of Lebanon, and soon after died in a good old age."

To add to the information respecting this James Fitch, I will copy an extract from my friend the late John Fitch of Mansfield, Ct., who was many years a judge in that state.

"'The Venerable Mr. Fitch of whom you speak is my ancestor, being the fifth generation from him in the line of his 4th son, John, who settled in Windham. He had nine sons and five daughters. One or more of his sons settled in Lebanon, where he retired after the infirmities of age rendered him unable to pursue his public labors, where he died. The old burying-ground in Lebanon received his remains, and contains a monument to his memory.

"The inscription [on said monument] is as follows:—'In hoc Sepulchro depositæ sunt Reliquiæ, viri vere Reverendi domini JACOBI FITCH; natus fuit apud Bocking in Comitatu Essexiæ in Anglia, Anno Domini 1622, Decembris 24. Qui postquam linguis et literis optime institutus fuisset, in Nov-Anglia venit, ætatis 16, et deinde vitam degit Harfordiæ, per septennium sub institutione virorum celeberrimorum domini Hooker et domini Stone. Postea munere pastorali functus est apud Saybrook, per annos 14. Illine, cum ecclesiæ, majori parte Norvicem migravit et ibi cæteros vitæ annos transegit in opere evangelico. In senectute, vero præ corporis infirmitate necessario cessabat ab opere publico; tandemque recessit liberis apud Lebanon, ubi, semi-anno fere exacto obdormivit in Jesu, anno 1702, Novembris 18, ætatis suæ 80; vir ingenii acumine, pondere judicii, prudentia, charitate sancta, laboribus, et omnemodo vitae sanctitate, peritia quoque, et vi concionandi nulli secundus.'

"Those of the name in the vicinity of Windham, Lebanon, Canterbury, Preston, Norwich, and Montville are his descendants. Those in the western part of the state (Connecticut) descended from his brother Thomas, who settled in Norwalk ———."*

Thy Friend,
D. M. LEONARD.

* In the Rev. Dr. Hall's History of Norwalk, Ct., will be found the best kind of materials for a genealogy of this branch of the Fitch family.—ED.

MORE YANKEE THAN PURITAN: JAMES FITCH OF CONNECTICUT

James M. Poteet

The Winthrop brothers dubbed him "Black James" and described him as a leader of "rude fellows of desperate fortune" as well as the author of "open and scandalous villanies."[1] Two of his fellow magistrates labeled him "a great land pirate," worse than Wat Tyler or Robin Hood, and asked the General Assembly to "seriously consider how pernicious" he was to "the rising generation in this colony."[2] Sir Henry Ashurst damned him as "the Cananite . . . in your land."[3] The object of this obloquy from the genteel was James Fitch, politician, land speculator, and disturber of the established order in colonial Connecticut. Far more Yankee than Puritan, Fitch is a clear example of that tortuous transition that historians have sought to describe and locate in time.[4] A model of economic individualism and political competitiveness, a contrast to the traditional virtues of social unity and harmony, Fitch manifests the confusion and disorder that often accompanied the secularization of New England. Beyond this symbolic importance, Fitch was also a significant figure in Connecticut history. Though he ended his life bested by his enemies, for a brief moment he was a bold challenger for power in the colony. His bid for supremacy was so nearly successful, in fact, that it left a folk memory that troubled Connecticut's gentry leaders a half century afterwards.[5]

There was little in Fitch's heritage to point his future course or suggest his ultimate notoriety. Born in Saybrook, Connecticut, on 2 August 1649, he was the son of the Reverend James Fitch. While the clerical father was one of that "second class" of divines described by Cotton Mather as those "whose education for their designed ministry not being finished, yet came over from England . . . and had their education perfected in this country,"[6] an ecclesiastical pedigree carried with it a certain standing in orthodox Connecticut. In 1660 Pastor Fitch led a portion of his Saybrook congregation into the wilderness to settle the town of Norwich; in that frontier community, the Reverend Fitch unknowingly prepared his legacy for his son.[7]

Even in the wilderness, Fitch maintained the Puritan clergy's reputation for scholarship and presumably tutored his son who, while never able to master the most elementary rules of punctuation, later demonstrated a talent for invective prose and even crude poetry.[8] The reputation of the senior Fitch did not rest on his theological writing, however, but on his vigorous missionary work among the Indians of Connecticut, particularly the Mohegans. Having mastered the Indian language, Fitch worked diligently to convert the famous chieftain Uncas and his son Owaneco. For a time the work among "those poor heathen" was so promising that the General Assembly of Connecticut acknowledged a readiness to "encourage Mr. Fitch in the work," and he received funds from the United Commissioners.[9] During King Philip's War, Fitch was particularly useful to the colony, maintaining the loyalty of the Mohegans and accompanying the colony's forces into battle.[10]

The younger Fitch could only profit from this upbringing. Raised on the frontier and in close contact with the Indians, he gained an intimate knowledge of the unsettled lands of eastern Connecticut and learned to manipulate the natives who claimed them. His marriage to Elizabeth Mason, daughter of the family most closely connected with Connecticut's Indians, promised further opportunities. Given both inherited advantages and his own surging ambitions, Fitch rose rapidly in the public affairs of his locality and colony. In 1679 he was elected a Norwich deputy to the General Court. The legislature itself acknowledged his promise by appointing him a magistrate for the town and treasurer of New London County.[11] For the next few years, Fitch was extremely busy in the public affairs of eastern Connecticut, but this did not mean he was neglecting his private interests; it was, in fact, during these years that he laid the founda-

8. The senior Fitch published The First Principles of The Doctrine of Christ (Boston, 1679), An Explanation of the Solemn Advice Recommended by the Council in Connecticut Colony (Boston, 1683) and the first election sermon in the colony to be printed, An Holy Connexion, Or a True Agreement Between Jehovahs Being a Wall of Fire to His People, and the Glory in the Midst Thereof (Cambridge, 1674). He also engaged in the scholarly disputes that were a part of the Puritan divine's life; see Connecticut Archives, Ecclesiastical Affairs, 1st ser., 1:81, Connecticut State Library, Hartford.

Uncas was a master at manipulating the colonists and even the determined Fitch finally had to report that the once hopeful convert was "abounding more and more in dancings and all manner of heathenism impieties." 10. Despite his "infermity in all respects," Fitch could not deny the government's plea that "your assistance is so accomodable to the design and to all our officers and soldiers . . . if you may overlook the difficulties and march out again . . . it shall be very acceptable and contentful to us." Ibid., 447, 463.

tion for his future conflicts.[12] All Connecticut men were preoccupied with land, but Fitch's ambitions would eventually outstrip and dwarf the aspirations of his contemporaries.

The eastern portion of Connecticut was ready ground for a man with land hunger. Titles to the unoccupied portions of the area were hopelessly muddled with overlapping claims and fatally aggravated by the titles of the Mohegan Indians residing in their chieftain Owaneco.[13] In 1680 and again in 1684, Fitch was able to persuade Owaneco to accept him as his guardian and to vest in him title to a great tract of land called the Quinebaug Country.[14] If Fitch could in some manner perfect his possession of this great tract of more than one million acres, he would be the greatest land magnate in New England. As his fellow magistrates later complained, "Fitch . . . hath such a large latitude to spread his wings far and near, he may easily stretch Owaneco's wings over two or three countrys more than his own to accommodate his own designs which C. Fitch might easily effect, seeing Owaneco is a person of so flexable a temper, that he will do anything for a bottle of rum. . . ."[15]

In 1680 Fitch was elected to a coveted seat on the Connecticut Council and appeared to be on the verge of becoming a commanding figure in the colony. His knowledge of the eastern lands, influence over the Indians, and vaunting ambition promised to carry him far. There were, however, potential barriers in his way. One irritating problem was the competing claim of the brothers Wait Still and Fitz John Winthrop to the Quinebaug lands. In 1653 the brothers' father, Governor John Winthrop, Jr., had acquired a claim to the land from an Indian chieftain named Allumps.[16] This claim passed to his sons who, while they did little to confirm it, were utterly unwilling to let this holding slip passively from their aristocratic family. The other threat, appearing suddenly at mid-decade, was the plan of the Stuart kings to bring rational order to their New World possessions by consolidation of the independent provinces of New England under a royal governor.[17] The ultimate establishment of the Dominion of New England under Sir Edmund Andros temporarily threatened Fitch's future.

As early as 1681, Edward Randolph's appearance in Boston produced apprehension throughout New England. John Allyn, Connecticut's secretary, made inquiries in Boston and was dismayed to learn that Randolph's coming promised "utter ruin" for the region.[18] In 1683 and again in 1686 quo warranto writs were sworn against Connecticut, engendering public distress and contention.[19] At last, on 31 October 1687, the issue was settled when Andros himself appeared in Hartford demanding submission; the following day a reluctant General Court acknowledged defeat and accepted absorption into the Dominion of New England.[20] Surviving records reveal little directly about James Fitch's role during these tense months, but his later actions leave no doubt that he opposed surrender of the colony's charter. He had nothing to gain by such a course. From Boston, Fitz John Winthrop hinted at future Dominion offices for many of the old magistrates, but his rival Fitch was not included in that group.[21] Rather, the Dominion posed a direct threat to his future in land speculation. Although Andros did not interfere with land tenures in Connecticut, the colony expected the worst and the governor-general's activities in Massachusetts Bay kept the fears lively.[22] During the Dominion, then, Fitch awaited the future and the unexpected turns it might bring with an uncharacteristic quietude.

On 4 April 1689 the moment Fitch had been unknowingly awaiting arrived. On that day the news that James II had fled the throne was confirmed in Boston and the Bay's saints overthrew the Dominion. Soon the news crossed the forest to Hartford. Sixty years later Roger Wolcott remembered the reception of this tiding: "I never see a day of rejoicing in Connecticut like this."[23] For many, however, the celebration was tempered by political calculations. Since the mid-1670s Connecticut had been entering a transitional period. Rapid population growth was filling the available lands of the colony, and the government's power to distribute the dwindling lands was altering the political culture of the colony. In the past, the absence of economic and social pressures had allowed the standing order of the colony confidently to base its authority on a general consensus and satisfaction among the voters.[24] At the very time the Dominion fell, such a consensus was no longer so easy to construct. Further, the old magistrates had tarnished an important component of their public image—as protectors of the colony's autonomy—by their acceptance of the Dominion. Gershom Bulkeley later remembered, and charged, "how Sir E. A. was caressed. . . . How brisk and jocund they [the old magistrates] were at that time. . . . What liberal healths some of them . . . drank then."[25]

The fall of the Dominion, then, produced a fluid situation into which an ambitious man might venture and greatly enhance his power. Clearly Fitch hoped to do just that by discrediting the old magistrates. In April 1689 the old leaders of the colony preferred a policy of inaction while testing the political winds, but Fitch agitated for an immediate meeting of the freemen. Bulkeley noted, "J. F., a justice of the peace, . . . travels from Dan to Beersheba to incite the freemen," and again, "J. F., his coming up to Hartford once and again, early in the spring, to promote an election. . . ."[26] This proved to be the popular course among the voters, and the old magistrates gave way, dispatching a call for deputies from the towns to assemble in a General Court to be held at Hartford on 9 May 1689.[27]

The traditional leaders of the colony were confused, but they recognized the threat. Fitz Winthrop was "obliged to sigh most sincerely for the hurries and ungoverned dispositions among ourselves" and hoped an election might be delayed if the magistrates could "withstand the people."[28] He recognized the unlikelihood of this course, however, and advised Secretary Allyn, "it is time to rouse yourself since we sorrowfully see some busy spirits hackneying themselves up and down to debauch not only the ignorant, but well disposed people. . . ."[29] Allyn hoped Winthrop himself would stand for the governorship since "I know you can do as much towards the preventing of inconveniences and defeating the designs of Col. Fitch and those with him here and elsewhere as any man among us. . . ."[30] He was joined in this proposal by the Reverend Timothy Woodbridge who urged Winthrop to thwart "the preposterous zeal of some factious hot heads whom I fear."[31]

On 8 May a caucus of nervous magistrates met in Hartford and on the next day presented the assembled representatives of the freemen with three alternatives: to restore the pre-Dominion government; to continue the present situation; or to establish a committee of safety.[32] After active debate, the first choice was settled upon and a Court of Election was held that restored the old magistrates to office.[33] On the surface this constituted a defeat for Fitch who, while restored to his pre-Dominion seat as an Assistant, had not been able to effect a major change among the magistrates. Presumably, however, he was satisfied that the colony's autonomy was again guaranteed, leaving him room to maneuver for the future. Already he was constructing a firm power base in his home county. John Wheeler of New London complained that Fitch had engrossed dictatorial control of the county, charging "that five of the chief members of this county are related (viz.) Capt. Fitch, Capt. Mason, Lt. Daniel Wintrell, Lt. Bruster and Richard Christophers" and that "the said five with Capt. James Morgan and Marshall Samuel Fosdick who are also in affinity with them have most (if not all) the offices, powers and authority of the moment in town and county."[34]

Fitch's ambitions stretched wider than the boundaries of his own county. He had important contacts among the representatives in the Lower House of the Assembly and used them to create a degree of suspicion about the old magistrates. When the deputies boldly demanded that "in case any occasion . . . in reference to our charter of government" arose, then a special session of the Assembly be called "to consider . . . what is necessary to be done, and do not leave it with the Council," he was enjoying some success.[35] He was also effective in creating an image among the electorate. It was reported to Fitz Winthrop that "he [Fitch] is so expert in the act of flattery that he makes many of the people believe that he is the chief patron of their charter priveladges. . . ."[36] He also challenged a rear guard action of Gershom Bulkeley who opposed resumption of charter government; Fitch wrote two pamphlets, A Plain Short Discourse and A Little of the Much, which justified resumption and offered the harsh advice that the government "screw up the ink-horns, still the tongues, empty the purses, and confine the persons of our objectors."[37]

During the next few years, Fitch was unable to banish the old magis-

33. Two vacancies, caused by deaths in 1688, were filled by the election of Fitz John Winthrop and his close friend Samuel Wyllys to the Board of Assistants.

34. Some idea of the way in which politics in Connecticut could revolve around family groupings may be gained from Wheeler's recital: "as to relation, Capt. Mason's sister married to Capt. Fitch, Capt. Fitch his brother married to Lt. Bruster's daughter, Lt. Bruster's sister married to Lt. Witherell, Lt. Witherell's sister married to Capt. James Morgan, Capt. Morgan's now wife[,] aunt to Richard[,] Christophers and Samuel Fosdeck[,] being own sister to their wives mothers." After this genealogy, the petitioner asked "Whether it doth not seem to be a combination for to engross and monopolize all offices, and consequently the authority into their hands." trates from all positions of power, but his own influence grew steadily. He encouraged the Assembly to make contact with Jacob Leisler and was one of the two delegates to visit the New York leader who welcomed their "broderly lofe and kaindness."[38] In the Assembly, he served on committees for every possible function,[39] causing the aristocratic Samuel Wyllys to complain that Fitch had become "the principal Minister of State." Wyllys himself was dropped from the Council and the voters replaced him with one of Fitch's supporters. "Most of our gentlemen," Wyllys wrote his friend Fitz Winthrop, "are secluded both houses of Parliament. Mr. Henry Wolcott and young Mr. Chester are both secluded the House of Commons the last sessions . . . and an eminent cider drinker in the room of one and a person risen out of obscurity in the place of the other." With "public and particular grievances and oppression continued and augmented," Wyllys could only declare that "speedy redress . . . is much desired. . . ."[40] The old magistrates did rouse themselves to send Fitz Winthrop to London as the colony's agent to gain a confirmation of their revolutionary settlement; if he was successful this might repair their tarnished image, but for the moment it simply removed from the scene one of Fitch's most skillful adversaries.[41]

During these years, Fitch's private enterprises also flourished.[42] His opponents complained that he was "exceedingly busy in selling the lands of this colony."[43] In particular, he began settling tenants in the Quinebaug country; from Boston, Wait Winthrop muttered, "I wonder at his confidence," and sought rival tenants. Soon each of the would-be landlords had rival camps—Fitch's tenants at Canterbury and Winthrop's at Plainfield—and a battle ensued with the tenants used as pawns. Wait Winthrop complained to the General Court that Fitch was terrorizing his tenants and legitimizing his outrages as chief judge of the New London county court. Unless "he be lord of your colony, . . ." a furious Winthrop wrote, "I desire . . . the justice of the colony as Englishmen."[44] On one occasion Winthrop complained that Fitch had broken into the house of one of his tenants in an act "termed no better than robbery," and again he charged that Fitch had "threatened to set the Indians" on his retainers. He urged his agent, John Gallup, to do his best to seduce Fitch's tenants away from him.[45] Fitch replied in kind, denouncing Winthrop's "foolish, rash, illegal and unreasonable" claims and threatening "wide mouth Galoup . . . and his hauling and lies."[46] Harsh words, lawsuits, and minor acts of violence engulfed the Quinebaug.

Requiring only additional time, Fitch was slowly undermining his public and private opposition. But time was precisely what he did not possess, for the news arrived in December 1697 that the agent to England, Fitz Winthrop, had arrived in Boston with the colony's charter secured. Assistant Caleb Stanley wrote Winthrop that his arrival had "much quieted the good people, especial in respect of the disturbances and convolutions they were in when your honor went from us,"[47] and the Reverend Gurdon Saltonstall rhapsodized, "the very expectation of your being once more among us puts new life and fresh vigor into our affairs which I think would soon have expired if they had not met with such a revival."[48] The old magistrates recognized that Winthrop's success had burnished their image and restored their credit, providing an opportunity to "dispel and scatter those clouds of darkness which some persons of evil principles . . . have been late endeavoring and contriving."[49]

Emboldened by their agent's success, the old order moved swiftly to secure their advantage. A special session of the General Court was called to heap honors on the agent returned. More important, alterations in the frame of government were in order. In the past the role of justice of the peace had been filled by "commissioners" elected in each county, a system that allowed popular local figures to dilute the authority of the General Court. This was swept away by legislation making the justiceships appointive "during the Court's pleasure." In addition, the structure of the county

46. James Fitch to Wait Winthrop, n.d.; James Fitch to John Gallop, 14 July 1699, Winthrop Manuscripts, Massachusetts Historical Society, Boston. Fitch and Gallop were on particularly bad terms. See Connecticut Archives, Crimes and Misdemeanors, 1st ser., 1:268; Court Papers, 513, 515, 518. Fitch was particularly involved with Benjamin Palmer, who had originally been his tenant, but had shifted his allegiance to the Winthrops. Wait complained that Fitch "molested" Palmer "contrary to all law and reason" dragging him through the New London county courts where "he seem[ed] to preside" since the juries were Norwich men who "depend on Capt. Fitch his bottom." "The Winthrop Papers," Mass. Hist. Soc., Colls., 5th ser., 8 (1882): 517-518. Palmer, for his part, "was in a great passion" and swore to kill Fitch and Marshal John Plumb. courts was modified; no longer would they be conducted by the local assistant, but rather by three justices and a judge appointed by the Assembly. With these steps, Fitch was removed from the New London bench and his local influence diminished. So long as the old magistrates could maintain a bare majority in the Assembly, they could guarantee a "safe" man in Fitch's home county.[50]

The next step was to put Winthrop himself at the head of the government. In January 1698 the Reverend James Pierpont approached the potential candidate, suggesting that his election would "make us a quiet and happy people" and noting that "the good success of your solicitations at home has prepared the people" to support him.[51] The Reverend Timothy Woodbridge expressed similar sentiments, urging Winthrop's presence at the Court of Election and promising, "we shall be glad of your directions for our receiving you as is becoming both your person and the benefit we hope for by your coming."[52] Winthrop was ready to serve, noting that the experience of the past few years had produced "unsafe" government.[53] Again Fitch's opponents were successful; the Reverend Gurdon Saltonstall reported to Winthrop that "the election of this day hath been concluded with the joyful acclamations of all the people that your honor hath this government devolved into your hands."[54]

Although it was not readily apparent at the time, Fitch's bid for power had almost run its course. Not only had his public and private enemy been elected governor, but the voters did not return Fitch to the Council. Two of Winthrop's supporters, John Clarke and Samuel Wyllys, went so far as to present the Assembly a general denunciation of the embattled Fitch. Styling themselves as those "who cannot see cause to acknowledge Capt. James Fitch to be Lord Proprietor of this colony," they asked, "let any man give an example of any one of the king's subjects in Europe or America since the time of William the Conqueror to this day, that ever engrossed so much land as Mr. Fitch has done. . . ."[55] In addition, at the October 1698 session of the Assembly, the newly elected governor persuaded the legislators to effect a division of the Assembly into two houses so that the "magistrates and deputies sit distinct," each possessing a veto over the decisions of the other.[56] With this step, the old magistrates needed only a majority in the Upper House to frustrate future proposals by Fitch's supporters in the more numerous Lower House.[57]

If Fitch had suffered a setback in his public career, he was not yet ready to give over his private ambitions. The Winthrop brothers viewed Fitz's election as governor as an opportunity to remedy their "great neglect" of the Quinebaug properties. At the October 1698 Assembly the governor secured the appointment of a commission of partisan assemblymen to survey the disputed area. Fitch countered at the May session; the governor disgustedly reported to his brother, "I see a couple of blades with a petition under the hands of above half the [Quinebaug] inhabitants desiring to have the privileges of a township . . . which was drawn by the old Philistine [Fitch]." Winthrop spoke to the right members of the Assembly, and the petition was ignored, while his own request for incorporation of a plantation at Plainfield was granted.[58] A chastened Fitch was willing to reach some accommodation with the brothers at this point, but his demands were too great, and he was defeated.[59]

The private battle joined, Fitch made a concerted effort to enhance his strength by returning to government. Samuel Wyllys grumbled about his "flattery" of the voters and complained, "thus are the people gulled and deceived by him."[60] In 1700 Fitch regained his seat in the Upper House and began a long campaign to undermine public confidence in the governor and the old magistrates. As the 1702 session drew near, Winthrop lay ill with pleurisy and his brother felt it necessary to come from Boston to monitor the session since he was warned that "by reason of the governor's sundry times absence in the time of the General Court" there was danger that Fitch would again become "dictator" of the colony, a prospect that "increaseth the dissatisfaction of the most prudent sort of men in the colony."[61] The governor's fear of Fitch was sufficient, however, to draw him from his sickbed to scold the legislators, "I perceive the Assembly doth triffle and too long delay justice to my complaints exhibited to this Court against Major Fitch."[62] Fitch replied in kind, accusing Winthrop of countenancing a prohibited trade with Canada, being guilty of "misman-

Soc., Colls., 6th ser., 5 (1892): 87; the brothers were gaining confidence in their cause, however, and when he drove Fitch's tenant Joseph Johnson from his farm, Wait insisted, "if Major Fitch shall again sell my land to any man . . . I shall certainly endeavor to put him out" and warned against "believing that Major Fitch was a lawyer and carried all before him in this government." agement in government," and other charges that "greatly reflect on the governor's honor."[63]

This attack on Winthrop necessarily reflected on the other magistrates, and they gave evidence of their new found confidence. Ruling Fitch's conduct "very erroneous and illegal," the Upper House gave Winthrop a vote of confidence and expressed anger that the attack on him was made by "one of the honorable members of the Council."[64] Thwarted in his direct attack, Fitch was forced to adopt new tactics, gathering a curious assortment of confederates—including Edward Palmes, John and Nicholas Hallum, and some Mohegan Indians—whose only common tie was their opposition to the standing order of the colony. By serving their own purposes, the old magistrates approximately served the public ends, thus depriving Fitch of the material out of which permanent political factions might be formed. He could do no better than manipulate changing coalitions of malcontents.

The Winthrops had never, for instance, lived easily with their brother-in-law Edward Palmes; their dislike became overt when Palmes challenged their administration of their father's estate, charging they had cheated his late wife of her rightful inheritance.[65] In October 1698 he petitioned the General Court to order the brothers to inventory the estate; the Court denied the petition and charged Palmes expenses.[66] Fellow residents of New London in support of Palmes and Fitch were the Hallum brothers, John and Nicholas. In 1689, on the death of their stepfather, John Liveen, the brothers discovered to their amazement that he had left almost his entire estate to "the ministry of New London," appointing Fitz Winthrop and Edward Palmes as executors. The brothers charged that the bequest—which would have benefitted the Reverend Gurdon Saltonstall, Fitz Winthrop's close friend and confidant—was invalid by reason of the testator's insanity, and they secured the compliance of Palmes, who refused to carry out his executor's duty.[67] Through the winter of 1689-1690 this trio and Fitch conferred in New London; in February, Wait Winthrop reported to his brother that "Sir Hude," as he contemptuously referred to Palmes, was in Boston on an unknown errand—one that became clear when Palmes and the Hallums took ship to carry their complaints to London.[68] The old magistrates were again endangered, for appeals to London threatened the charter, and their image as its keepers was the strongest weapon in their arsenal. Samuel Wyllys urged Winthrop to take the greatest care "for the safety of our charter in such carping times."[69]

When the Privy Council took up Hallum's appeal in March 1702, Connecticut's agent, Sir Henry Ashurst, reported that "they opened up such things . . . that made your cause look very foul." The Council ordered new evidence submitted, and by March 1703 both sides were again gathering affidavits. To bedevil the governor, Fitch managed to preside at the examinations. According to Gurdon Saltonstall, "all I hear he [Fitch] says in his defense is that the case is extraordinary, and I think the same of his proceedings." Again Winthrop's influence in the Assembly prevailed, and that body found Fitch guilty of maladministration and ordered the examining of witnesses redone.[70] While Ashurst did yeoman's work protecting the colony in London, the governor could not do the same for him in Hartford. He reported to the agent that he had not raised the subject of his salary with the Assembly because "Major James Fitch and Capt. Samuel Mason . . . falling in with Major Palmes and Hallum, do all they can to give us all imaginable trouble and destroy our government" and had seized upon the issue of the agency. Winthrop could only hope that in the future "our people will have a better understanding of these persons whose counsels have so misled them."[71]

While Fitch was orchestrating these vexations for his enemies, he also had a hand in a greater crisis. Connecticut claimed title to a great triangle of land in the eastern portion of the colony—about eight hundred square miles in all—by deed from the Mohegan Indians. Portions of the area had been settled for years before the first hint of trouble came, in October 1703, in the form of a complaint from Owaneco, the Mohegan chieftain, claiming the Indians had granted only jurisdiction, and not possession, of the lands to the colony.[72] This claim, which threatened to oust hundreds of families, took on added dimensions when it was learned that Nicholas Hallum was to carry it to London.[73] In July 1704 a royal commission was appointed to investigate the charges; the commission—ultimately boycotted by Connecticut's representatives—found for the Indians, restoring their lands and assessing the colony a bill of costs amounting to £573.[74]

70. Ibid., 6th ser., 3 (1889): 120, 124; Conn. Col. Recs., 4:430-431.

71. He also reported that Fitch, Mason, Palmes and Hallum had gone to Rhode Island to secure that colony's seal on papers to be sent to England "to asperse this government." "The Winthrop Papers," Mass. Hist. Soc., Colls., 6th ser., 3 (1889): 133-134.

73. This was a double threat for, as Robert Livingston warned, issues such as this might lead Parliament to begin a general inquiry into the matter of the colony's charter. "The Winthrop Papers," Mass. Hist. Soc., Colls., 6th ser., 3 (1889): 285-288. The colonial agent, Sir Henry Ashurst, also warned of the delicacy of the times: "The Cananite is in your land, therefore, it requires and concerns you to be exact in the administration of your justice, that your enemies may have nothing to object against you." Ibid., 121.

74. Ibid., 349-354. The hearing at Stonington was a general opportunity for mischief. Robert Lord later testified that he was approached by Nicholas Hallum who "suggested to him that now he had an opportunity to make complaint . . . against this government of wrongs done." Connecticut Archives, Indian Records, 1:63.

Declaring that the Indians had been used as tools of "some few English persons who would engross into their hands all the lands mentioned there," the colony instructed its London agent to fight the decision.[75] By feverish activity, Ashurst was able to secure a reversal of the decision and when a new commission of review issued, he was able to frustrate its operation.[76]

While Winthrop was able to parry the attacks of Fitch and company, the continuous assaults did produce unrest in the colony. As early as 1701, the governor felt it necessary to commit his opening remarks to the Assembly to paper lest he be accused of words "which God knows were never in my heart or mouth," and he pled with the deputies to commit their "utmost endeavor to support the interest of our happy constitution."[77] By 1704 the grumbling was so loud that the governor and Assistants took the unprecedented step of circularizing the freemen, urging them "in the critical juncture of our affairs" to "very carefully attend their nominations and election of members of the General Assembly."[78] The next year, an advisor of the governor insisted that the Mohegan lands affair had seriously weakened the government and argued "if your honor do not exert your authority and push on the cause with the greatest vehemence, it will not succeed."[79] The Winthrops could not suppress their amazement that Fitch was annually elected an Assistant, a "tragi-comedy" in their opinion.[80] Fitch plagued Winthrop to the end; after meeting his last Assembly, the old governor sighed that he was "weary of my life" and reported, "I never found them [the deputies] in a worse temper."[81]

Despite his ability to continually vex his enemies, Fitch was losing control of events and was at last ousted from the Quinebaug lands. He almost outlasted the Winthrops. In 1704 the governor complained to his brother, "I am tired with the trouble and charge of it . . . tis the present time and enjoyments that is best; anything else is not worth a T."[82] The governor was willing, however, to make one last effort. In 1705 he persuaded the Assembly to appoint a committee to settle title to the area. It was a very favorable committee; one member, the Reverend James Noyes, assured

THE ARNETT FAMILY OF ELIZABETH TOWN, NEW JERSEY

A SLIGHT INACCURACY appeared in the article titled as above and contributed by the late Richard W. Cook. On page 73, volume 56 of the Magazine, the wife of James * Arnett (#2) is given as Jemima Pierson, daughter of Henry and Sarah Pierson. Actually, the wife of Henry Pierson and mother of Jemima was Jemima (Ogden) Pierson, daughter of John Ogden and Elizabeth Plum. Possibly, this inaccuracy was based on Henry Pierson's will (NJA 30:376) which names his wife Sarah and, among his children, Jemima wife of James Arnet. Jemima is listed as a child of Henry and Jemima (Ogden) Pierson on page 51 of The Ogden Family of America (1907). Undoubtedly, Henry's wife Jemima died and he married a Sarah ——? who was his wife at his death but not the mother of his children. The Ogden Family of America most likely listed only his first wife, Jemima, as Sarah, having no issue, was of no concern to the Ogden genealogy.—ELMER E. MEYER.

The Arnett Family
of Elizabeth Town, New Jersey

RICHARD W. COOK*

1. JAMES ARNETT was born probably ca. 1685-1690. One tradition has it that he was from a French Huguenot family who fled from France to the West Indies, while some say the family was from the western part of England, possibly Wales. The inhabitants of the Parish of Christ Church, Barbadoes, about 1680, included David Arnett and Patrick Arnett. In the register of Christ Church it is noted that Samuel, son of David and Jane Arnet, was baptised September 9, 1679, seven months of age, buried September 13, 1679 (Barbadoes Parish Registers, see also John Camden Hotten, The Original Lists of Persons of Quality, . . ., 2nd ed., 1880).

The name of James Arnett's wife is unknown. One thought is that she was a Jane Whitehead, possibly the daughter of Isaac Whitehead, Jr. There was a brass candlestick in the family of Abraham Woodruff who married Abigail Arnett which was always called "Grandmother Jane's." On the other hand, J. Crawford Hartman in his "The Blanchard Family of Elizabeth, N.J." states the wife of James Arnett may have been Elizabeth Blanchard (NYGBR 75:146). Mr. Hartman told this writer that he had a letter from the daughter of Mrs. Shelley Rouse saying that an old paper in the Kollock family states that James Arnett's wife was a Blanchard (see Rouse, The Reads and Their Relatives . . . (1930), pp. 440-43). From the dates given in the article in the Record this seems questionable. From the name of one of the sons could she have been an Auger?

Children:

+2. James, b. ca. 1714.
+3. David, b. possibly ca. 1716.
+4. Auger, b. possibly ca. 1718.
5. Susanna, b. probably ca. 1720, d. Mar. 2, 1791, m. William Harriman, b. Apr. 28, 1718, d. Mar. 9, 1811. In the rateables for Essex County, Elizabeth Tp, Town Ward, for January 1779 William Harriman has seventy-nine acres, three horses, five horned cattle, two hogs, and is exempt. For February 1780 he has four horses, four horned cattle, and one hog (GMNJ 43:32). William Harriman of Elizabeth, Essex Co., died intestate. The inventory was made Apr. 12, 1811 and sworn to Apr. 15, 1811 by the administrator, Isaac Morse (NJA 41:167).
6. Abigail, b. probably ca. 1723, d. October 1779, m. Abraham Woodruff, d. ca. January 1773. Abraham Woodruff of the Borough of Elizabeth, Essex Co., in his will dated Dec. 14, 1772 and proved Feb. 8, 1773, names his wife Abigail, sons William, Abraham, David, and Isaac Watts to have money when they are twenty-one, and daughters Ann, Susannah, and Abigail, the latter two being under eighteen. Executors were wife Abigail and friend William Herriman (NJA 34:596).

2. JAMES ARNETT, son of James Arnett (#1), born ca. 1714, died October 1778, married 1742 Jemima Peirson, daughter of Henry and Sarah Peirson, born December 22, 1717, died November 21, 1804, aged eighty-seven years. 7. ISAAC ARNETT, son of James Arnett (#1), born May 30, 1726, died November 19, 1801, in his seventy-sixth year, married May 6, 1753, Hannah White, daughter of Silas White and Sarah Howell, born January 15, 1733, at Bridgehampton, Long Island, died January 10, 1823, aged ninety years. Isaac Arnett and his wife are buried in the First Presbyterian churchyard, Elizabeth, New Jersey.

Isaac Arnett is listed as a freeholder in Elizabethtown, September 1, 1755 (NJHSP, 2nd Ser. (1895), 13:25). He, as a friend, is appointed one of the executors of the will of John Clark of the Borough of Elizabeth, who in his will dated March 2, 1769, bequeaths to his son John "the place where I live, along the line of John Nutman and Isaac Arnett" (NJA 34:93). In the rateables for Essex County, Elizabeth Township, Springfield Ward, for February 1779, Isaac Arnet is a householder with thirty-eight acres, a trader, having a riding chair, and exempt. For February 1780, he is no longer a householder and does not have a riding chair but has two horses, three horned cattle, and £1000 out at interest (GMNJ 43:79). In the rateables for the Town Ward, January 1779, he has fifteen acres and is exempt (GMNJ 43:30). He is noted as a trustee of the First Presbyterian Church of Elizabethtown, July 1, 1784 (HHE, p. 593). In 1798, he was living in Scotch Plains where he was considered one of the four wealthiest inhabitants.

Isaac Arnett of Westfield Township, Essex County, in his will dated August 8, 1797 and proved December 8, 1801, names his wife Hannah who is to have the use of the real and personal estate during her life with the children and grandchildren to receive after she dies. Specific bequests are made to sons Silas White Arnet of £50, Shelly Arnet £50 if he returns home in ten years, Isaac Arnet £50 if he returns home in ten years, and William Arnet £100, and to daughters Susannah Kollock £60, Sarah Stogden £75, Abigail Brown £100, and Hannah Chapman £80, to granddaughter Hannah Stogden £10, and to grandsons Samuel Kollock £10, Isaac Arnet Brown £10, and Isaac Arnet Stogden £10. The residue is to be divided between said children and grandchildren. Executors were wife Hannah, son William Arnet, and grandson Henry Clinton Kollock (NJA 39:15).

Hannah White Arnett was a famous patriot of the Revolution and as such is especially revered by the Daughters of the American Revolution. A plaque commemorating patriotic citizens and honoring "Hannah W. Arnett" has been placed in the churchyard of the First Presbyterian Church in Elizabeth, New

9. MEHITABLE ARNETT, probably a daughter of James Arnett (#1), born possibly ca. 1733, married Andrew Blanchard, son of John Blanchard and Mary Joline, born ca. 1728, died ca. 1787, at New Bern, Craven County, North Carolina. Andrew Blanchard removed from New Jersey to North Carolina and is supposedly the Blanchard in the firm of Hodge and Blanchard, publishers in New Bern in 1775 or earlier. The Hodge was apparently the brother of the Eleanor Hodge who married Judge John Boylan (SCHQ 6:107). Hatfield says Andrew Blanchard served in the Revolution as a captain of a Troop of Light Horse (HHE, p. 251). Andrew Blanchard died intestate. Silas White Arnett (#23) served as one of the administrators. On June 10, 1793, the sheriff gave a deed against the administration of Andrew Blanchard, deceased (Craven Co., N.C., deed 30:234).

Children (probable):

i. Isaac Blanchard, b. possibly ca. 1761, d. Jan. 11, 1794; unm.

v. Elizabeth Blanchard, b. 1773, d. Oct. 9, 1811, aged 37 yrs., 10 mos., m. (1) per marriage bond dated Feb. 2, 1793, New Bern, Craven Co., N.C., Isaac Cole, b. Nov. 21, 1762, d. July 1806; m. (2) supposedly William Vines; had issue by first husband (NYGBR 75:154). D.A.R. #94087 is said to be assigned to a descendant.

12. James Arnett, Dr., son of James Arnett (#2) and Jemima Peirson, born probably ca. 1747, died 1769-1772, married Mary Bond, daughter of Robert Bond and Mary Bond. Mary (Bond) Arnett married second Thomas Bowman. From the records of the Presbyterian Church in New York City, Thomas Bauman, mariner, married April 16, 1773, Mary Arnet, widow (NYGBR 14:169). In the rateables for Essex County, Elizabeth Township, Town Ward, for January 1779 Thomas Bowman is listed as a householder (GMNJ 43:30). Robbart Bond of Essex County, in his will dated March 7, 1760, and proved April 16, 1760, names his under-age children including Mary (NJA 32:35).

Child:

32. Elizabeth, b. Apr. 24, 1769, at Elizabethtown, d. Sept. 7, 1822, at Prattsburg, N.Y. (near Utica), m. May 1787, at Elizabethtown Moses Lyon, son of Moses Lyon and Mary Harris, b. Dec. 21, 1763, d. May 2, 1823, at Prattsburg, N.Y.; had issue (see Lyon, Lyon Memorial (1907), v. II, p. 132).

14. John Arnett, son of James Arnett (#2) and Jemima Peirson, born possibly ca. 1750, died September 1775, at Elizabethtown and was buried September ninth. He married Hannah (or Mary) Miller.

Child:

33. Nancy, bp. Aug. 18, 1773, at St. John's Prot. Episcopal Church, Elizabethtown, d. Aug./Sept. 1773.

22. Sarah Howell Arnett, daughter of Isaac Arnett (#7) and Hannah White, born May 17, 1759, married April 9, 1778, Benjamin Brearley Stockton (Stogden), born August 14, 1754, died June 9, 1829, in Caledonia, Genesee County, New York. Benjamin B. Stockton, the son of Major Thomas Stockton and Sarah Brearley, was born in Princeton where he commenced the practice of medicine. He was a surgeon in the Revolution. In December 1776, he entered the hospital department and, in June 1777, received an appointment from Doctor William Shippen of Philadelphia as Junior Surgeon in the hospital department, which office he held until February 1778. Early in June of that year he was appointed Surgeon in Colonel Seeley's Regiment, remaining one year. He is said to have been at the Battle of Monmouth, and the battles of Long Island and Trenton. He removed to Cohocton, Steuben County, New York thence to Vernon, Oneida County, and then to Buffalo, and was a surgeon there when the hospital burned in 1813. He then located in Caledonia where he died. There is some indication he married second June 19, 1820, Olivia Bennett, although another account says his wife died a short time before he did, implying Olivia was his first wife. 23. Silas White Arnett, son of Isaac Arnett (#7) and Hannah White, born July 20, 1761, died May-June 1806, at New Bern, North Carolina, married first per Craven County, North Carolina, marriage bond dated June 14, 1785, Susanna Davis. The co-signer on the bond was D. Witherspoon. Silas married second per Craven County marriage bond dated September 23, 1793, Elizabeth Latchmore. She was probably a sister of Ann "Nancy" (Lechmere) Cooke who died at New Bern, Craven County, North Carolina, October 4, 1807, the daughter of Lord Nicholas Lechmere and Elizabeth Gardiner of Rhode Island.

On October 9, 1780, S. W. Arnett witnessed the administration papers for the estate of William Pool of Essex County, New Jersey (NJA 34:400); witnessed the guardianship papers of Isaac Clark, his ward being Levi Frazee of Essex County on April 15, 1782 (NJA 35:153); and on June 21, 1782 was witness to the administration papers for the estate of Andrew Lambert of Essex County (NJA 35:240). On June 16, 1798, Silas White Arnett was one of the signers of the bond for Ann Cooke, administratrix of the estate of Silas Cooke, deceased (Craven Co., N.C., wills 1748-1941, CF 028.801.20, Raleigh, N.C.).

Under date of June 10, 1806, the administrators of the estate of Silas White Arnett were Frederick Nash and Henry M. Cooke who posted bond for 2000 pounds. On an accounting slip, it is indicated that the last purchase made by S. W. Arnett was for one umbrella on May 20, 1806. In an estate sale made July 1806 the proceeds were £1351.12.2½. Included in this sale was one share of the Newbern Library sold for £12.10.0. An accounting by the administrators, June term, 1808, shows a balance in the estate of $2473.93 (ibid.). There is no indication of any issue.

29. William Arnett, son of Isaac Arnett (#7) and Hannah White, born November 18, 1774, died September 20, 1821, married June 17, 1800, Mary Hedges, born October 1, 1771. Doctor William Arnett is buried in the First

THE ARNETT FAMILY OF ELIZABETH TOWN, NEW JERSEY

A SLIGHT INACCURACY appeared in the article titled as above and contributed by the late Richard W. Cook. On page 73, volume 56 of the Magazine, the wife of James * Arnett (#2) is given as Jemima Pierson, daughter of Henry and Sarah Pierson. Actually, the wife of Henry Pierson and mother of Jemima was Jemima (Ogden) Pierson, daughter of John Ogden and Elizabeth Plum. Possibly, this inaccuracy was based on Henry Pierson's will (NJA 30:376) which names his wife Sarah and, among his children, Jemima wife of James Arnet. Jemima is listed as a child of Henry and Jemima (Ogden) Pierson on page 51 of The Ogden Family of America (1907). Undoubtedly, Henry's wife Jemima died and he married a Sarah ——? who was his wife at his death but not the mother of his children. The Ogden Family of America most likely listed only his first wife, Jemima, as Sarah, having no issue, was of no concern to the Ogden genealogy.—ELMER E. MEYER.

Book Reviews

This department of the New Haven Genealogical Magazine offers to compilers and publishers of genealogical books the opportunity to secure fair and honest reviews of their productions. The reviewer will do his utmost to point out the good features of every book which is presented for review, but in fairness to those who read the reviews will mention striking deficiencies, such as the lack of an index, unusually poor arrangement of material, or gross inaccuracies. All genealogical books, even the poorest, have some value, insofar as they present material not to be found elsewhere in print, and it is our aim to say the best that can be said of each book. Those who wish books reviewed should send them to the address below.

BLACKMAN Blackman and Allied Families. Compiled for Nathan Lincoln Blackman by Alfred L. Holman. Privately printed, Chicago, 1928. 8°, cloth, 1 chart, 258 pp. Address: Nathan L. Blackman, 6930 South Shore Drive, Chicago, Ill.

The first twenty-one pages are devoted to a record of the family of John Blackman (of Dorchester 1640), one branch of which is brought down for eight generations. A very full account is given of the families of James Adams (of Westerly 1698), of Thomas Joslin (of Hingham 1635), and of John Keigwin (of Stonington 1702).

The remainder of the volume deals less exhaustively with other families from whom Mr. Blackman traces his descent. A great deal of information is compressed into small compass, and descendants of the following Connecticut settlers will find much of interest in the book: Robert Allen or Allyn (of New London 1651); William Billings (of New London by 1670); Richard Birge (of Windsor 1640); Robert Campbell (of New London 1714); Stephen Gates (of Preston 1708, son of Stephen of Hingham 1638); William Gaylord (of Windsor 1638); George Geer (of New London 1659); Jonathan Gillett (of Windsor 1635); Thomas Holcombe (of Windsor 1635); Robert Howard (of Windsor by 1643); John Ingersoll (of Hartford by 1651); William Kennedy (of Preston before 1727); Thomas Kilbourne (of Wethersfield by 1640); Joseph Loomis (of Windsor 1639); Thomas Lord (of Hartford 1636); Daniel McMains of Plainfield 1734); John Marsh (of Hartford 1636); John Packer (of New London by 1651); Walter Palmer (of Stonington); Robert Parke (of Stonington); George Phelps (of Windsor 1635); Stephen Randall (of Stonington, son of John of Westerly); Thomas Rose (of New London); Ephraim Sawyer (of Windham 1717, grandson of Thomas of Lancaster); Gerard Spencer (of Haddam 1660); Josiah Standish (of Norwich 1686, son of Myles of Plymouth); Roger Sterry (of Stonington 1671));...

and Gov. John Webster (of Hartford 1636).

Other New England families, of the following names, are also considered: Allen, Blogget, Brooks, Brown, Church, Collins, Edmands, Farrar, Gardner, George, Hall, Hayward, Heywood, King, Linton, Mason, Newhall, Pelton, Potter, Prescott, Richards, Sabin, Scott, Shaw, Smith, Tucker, Warren, Waters, Wheeler, Whitcomb, Wilder, and Woodward.

The matter is well arranged, and an index provided. References to printed sources are given, and on many of the families much original research has been done. Many documents are quoted, and the illustrations add to the value of the book. The fact that Mr. Holman is the compiler gives assurance that the research was carefully done and that the information found in the book is dependable. It ranks with the best pedigree books of this type, and is recommended to genealogical students and libraries.

DODGE Dodge Genealogy Colonial Ancestry: The Nicholls-Upham Line: The Nicholls-Bruce Line. Compiled by Olive E. Dodge. Published by Melvin Gilbert Dodge, Utica, N. Y., 1925. 15 p. 8°.

This pamphlet states the ancestry of Lydia Nicholls, wife of William Dodge, through her father Benjamin Nicholls of Mansfield, Conn., and her mother Lydia Upham. It follows "Sergeant Francis Nicholls and Descendants of his Son, Caleb", by Walter Nicholls, in stating that Francis Nicholls of Stratford, the first settler, was son of Francis & Margaret (Bruce) Nicholls and hence brother of Gov. Richard Nicolls of New York. This statement of the parentage of Francis of Stratford is erroneous. Francis the brother of Richard was a Royalist Captain, who followed the King into exile, and died on the Continent; since the Civil War in England did not break out until 1642, and our American Francis was in Stratford in 1639 and died there in 1650, the identification is impossible. On page 13 it is stated that Benjamin Nicholls who was born at Stratford 15 June 1729, married at Mansfield, Conn., 20 June 1745, Lydia Upham. No proof is given, and although it is not impossible that a youth of sixteen was married at that age in a town far removed from his place of residence, the circumstances are unusual and descendants of the Mansfield Benjamin should seek record proof of these statements before accepting them.

HARMON The Ancestry of Lydia Harmon 1755-1836, wife of Joseph Waterhouse of Standish, Maine. By Walter Goodwin Davis. Published by Stanhope Press, Boston, Mass., 1924. 122 p. 8°

This is a model volume, evidencing careful and thorough research in original record sources. The material is well arranged and presented, and there is an adequate index. A very full account is given of the early Harmons of New England, and other families treated are those of William

Roberts of Oyster River, N. H., Robert Goodale of Salem and Wells, Isaac Cousins of Wells, John Hoyt of Amesbury, Newington and Scarborough, George Brown of Salisbury, Robert Taprill and George Walton of Great Island, N. H., and Daniel Hasty of Scarborough. This volume also contains a reprint of a curious tract entitled "Lithobolia: or, the Stone-Throwing Devil", originally printed in London in 1698, which narrates the supernatural events that harassed George Walton's family at Great Island, N. H.

HOSMER Hosmer Genealogy. Descendants of James Hosmer who Emigrated to America in 1635 and Settled in Concord, Mass. By George Leonard Hosmer. Pub. Cambridge, Mass., 1928. 271 p. 8°. Order from George L. Hosmer, Room 1-239, Mass. Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Mass. Price, $10.00.

The family name is traced to Saxon times, and the ancestry of the American Hosmers is authentically traced to James Hosmer (died 1605) of Ticehurst, co. Sussex, the grandfather of Thomas Hosmer, founder of the Hartford, Conn., branch and of his brother James Hosmer, founder of the Concord, Mass., branch. The old difficulty regarding the identity of the mother of the emigrants is carefully analysed, and her real identity established.

The book, which is attractively bound in cloth, with gilt top, traces the Concord branch, and lists over 3400 individuals who were related by descent or marriage to the emigrant James. The arrangement of the genealogical matter is clear and workmanlike, and there is an adequate index (27 pages). The compiler in his preface modestly disclaims any pretense that his Hosmer history is complete. However, completeness is an ideal impossible of attainment in this kind of work, and Mr. Hosmer has merited the gratitude of Hosmer descendants and genealogical students in general, for preserving the valuable material he has collected by publication in a form which makes it accessible to all.

There are pictures of the churches at Ticehurst, co. Sussex, and at Hawkhurst, co. Kent, with which the grandparents and parents of the emigrants were associated, and other illustrations. We recommend the volume to genealogical libraries.

SEAMAN The Seaman Family in America as descended from Captain John Seaman of Hempstead, Long Island. By Mary Thomas Seaman. New York, 1928. 338 p. 8°. Order from the author, Miss Mary T. Seaman, 2 Montague Terrace, Brooklyn, N. Y. Price, $20.00.

This volume, recently issued from the press of Tobias A Wright, Inc., presents an attractive appearance, with red cloth binding, gilt top, a high grade of laid paper, and excellent typography.

It contains a wealth of material on the descendants of Capt. John Sea-inted from Family Tree Maker, CD179 Family History: Connecticut Genealogies #1, Families of Ancient New Haven, Vol. V, Bethany Mortality List, © Broderbund Software, Inc., Banner Blue Division, July 9, 1998

man, who after a brief sojourn in Massachusetts and Connecticut, became an original proprietor of Hempstead, L. I., in 1647, and was appointed Captain of Queens County Troop in 1665. Miss Seaman's courage in undertaking to record the history of so prolific a family is worthy of applause; for Captain John is credited with sixteen children, and the Hempstead Census of 1698 lists forty Seamans. A simple numbering system is employed; descendants in the male line are traced, and the children of Seaman daughters given, when known.

Great praise should be bestowed on the choice of the twenty-two illustrations. Of these, the coat-of-arms (in black and white)may be purchased separately for $1.00, and the reproductions of the 1657 deed from the Indians to Seaman and others, and the autographed deed of John Seaman to his sons, as well as three pictures of Seaman homesteads, and a unique map, are sold separately at fifty cents each. Other original documents, deeds, marriage certificates, etc., are reproduced in the book, which as a whole and in detail should be of absorbing interest to Seaman descendants. The book is well indexed (45 pages).

The difficulties that beset the searcher who attempts to trace Long Island families are only too well known to the reviewer, and where deficiencies occur in the present volume, we are more disposed to sympathize than to criticise. However, the possibilities of research on the early generations have not been exhausted, and a few inaccuracies strike the eye. On page 14 we find the statement: "In 1646 John Seaman and his brother Caleb are recorded in New Haven, Conn. At this period came the Pequod Indian War, and Captain John Mason was given chief command (as Major) of the Connecticut Troops. To John Seaman he gave command of one of the Companies", etc. Actually, the name of John Seaman was not mentioned in New Haven records in 1646, when Caleb Seaman, quite possibly his brother, was recorded as about to return to England. The Pequot War was fought in 1637, before New Haven was in existence. John Mason led the Connecticut Colony troops as Captain, and was called by that title in the colonial records as late as 1653, the title Major being first applied to him in May 1654. We have been unable to find in any contemporary source the statement that John Seaman served under Mason in the Pequot War. No muster roll of Connecticut troops serving under Mason has ever been found or published, and the most accurate list obtainable is the one painstakingly compiled by the late James Shepard in his pamphlet, "Connecticut Soldiers in the Pequot War of 1637"-a work which, incidentally, does not mention the name of John Seaman.

We have called attention, in the interest of historical accuracy, to what we can only consider an unproved (and probably unprovable) statement in "The Seaman Family", and we believe that Miss Seaman was led into error by following secondary instead of primary sources of historical information respecting the career of Capt. John Seaman. We in no sense intend to impugn her general accuracy, or the value of the genealogical statistics which she has preserved in her sumptuous volume, which we cordially recommend to genealogical libraries.

STORK The Genealogy of the Descendants of Moses Stork, Scarborough, Yorkshire, Old England. Compiled and published by Charles A. Storke of Santa Barbara, Calif., 1925. 21 p. 12°.

The founder of this family was Moses Stork, who by 1746 had come from Scarborough, co. York, England, to New London, Conn., removing a few years later to Branford, Conn. From there the family removed to Chenango County, N. Y. The descendants are traced and listed with exactness. This pamphlet was issued and distributed in the hope of eliciting additional information for a more complete history of the family. On the early generations, unpublished vital, probate and census records are quoted, adding to the value of the booklet.

Accurate; not indexed.

STOWE Ancestry and some of the descendants of Capt. Stephen Stowe of Milford, Conn. Compiled and published by Nathan Stowe of Milford, Conn., 1924. 24 p. 8°

This interesting pamphlet traces one branch of the John Stowe family of Roxbury, Mass., through his son Thomas of Middletown, Conn., and Thomas, Jr., and Dea. Samuel, both of Middletown, to the latter's son Stephen Stowe (1726–1777) of Milford, who had four sons in active service in the Revolutionary War, and lost his own life nursing the sick American soldiers. The line is traced to the grandfather of the emigrant, based on the research in England of Mrs. Elizabeth (French) Bartlett. A full record of brothers and sisters is given in each generation; also biographical notes of ancestors in the direct line; the ancestry of Freelove Baldwin, wife of Capt. Stephen Stowe; and a partial record of their descendants.

Accurate; complete within self-imposed limits; not indexed.

TOWNE The Ancestry of Lieut. Amos Towne 1737-1793 of Arundel (Kennebunkport), Maine. By Walter Goodwin Davis. Published by The Southworth Press, Portland, Me., 1927. 81 p. 8°

Like the Harmon book noticed above, this is a splendid piece of work, based on original research both here and abroad. It treats of the families of William Towne of Topsfield and Arundel, whose antecedents in England are traced, Thomas Browning of Salem and Topsfield, Robert Smith of Boxford, Ens. Thomas French of Ipswich, Zacheus Curtis of Boxford and Topsfield, and Thomas Looke of Lynn and Boxford. Mr. Davis, in issuing monographs on the families of early settlers, such as are contained in this volume and the Harmon book, has set a high standard of excellence, and we hope he will continue to publish the results of his researches.

SHERWOOD. Daniel L. Sherwood and his paternal ancestors, including evidences both in England and America from the first mention of the name in history about seven hundred and fifty years ago down to and including Thomas Sherwood, the American Pioneer, and Francis Sherwood, the Maryland pioneer, and some of their many descendants. In ten chapters, genealogical and biographical, by Andrew Sherwood. 8vo. Portland, Ore., 1929. Order from Andrew Sherwood, 69th and East Burnside Streets, Portland, Ore.

This book, bound in a serviceable dark blue cloth, is fairly well made, although it probably would not stand a great deal of use without a more substantial binding. In addition to some half-tone prints of Sherwood Forest, there are several excellent portraits of members of the later generations of the family. The use of bold face type in place of italics in citing references is, however, poor typography, especially since the printer has used bold face also in caption headings.

The first chapter is concerned with the family in England and its supposed connection with Sherwood Forest and Nottingham. There is nothing new or of any importance in this chapter.

In the second chapter (pp. 29-82) most of the space is devoted to the history of Thomas of Fairfield, Connecticut; with some discussion of the descendants of Francis, of Maryland, and the Sherwoods in Virginia. After a careful reading of this chapter one reaches the conclusion that Mr. Sherwood accepts the theory that Thomas, of Stratford (d. 1657), was the son of Thomas, of Fairfield (d. 1655), and therefore aged 10 in April, 1634, and married in 1639. This famous Sherwood tangle has troubled many genealogists, but Mr. Jacobus, who has recently studied documentary sources, informs us that this theory is incorrect, and that while Thomas of Stratford may have been related to Thomas of Fairfield, he was certainly not the latter's son. We would have preferred to have seen the problem stated and the evidence presented by Mrs. Lucia Russell Fellows of Salt Lake City, who has worked upon the Sherwood family for many years; for Mr. Sherwood has hopelessly mixed quotations from documents, passages from Mrs. Fellows's letters to him, and interspersed these with comments of his own. Indeed, it is to be regretted that he did not ask Mrs. Fellows to write this chapter. As it stands, it is only by very carefully reading and actually charting the facts stated that one can determine what Mr. Sherwood is trying to say and the relationships he is attempting to establish.

Chapter three is devoted to the next three generations of Mr. Sherwood's line: Isaac[2], Daniel[3] and Daniel[4]. Here again there would seem to be a controversy, namely that concerning the wife of Daniel[3]. Several members of the family claim her to have been Ruth Bradley, daughter of John and Hannah (Sherwood) Bradley. According to Chief Justice Bradley, this Ruth was born in 1699, whereas the tombstone of Daniel Sherwood's wife, discovered in 1925 by Mr. Starr S. Sherwood, indicates that she was born in 1690. It is known that Daniel Sherwood must have married this Ruth, whoever she may have been, in or about 1711, as their first child was born in 1712. So, on the face of it, the Bradley theory does not hold. Here again documentary evidence must be forthcoming before the matter can be determined.

The remaining chapters are devoted to the succeeding generations of Mr. Sherwood's line, which is: Thomas[1], Isaac[2], Daniel[3], Daniel[4], Henry[5], Daniel[6], Albert[7], Andrew[8], with considerable detail regarding the descendants of Daniel[6] in all branches. Here Mr. Sherwood is working upon more certain ground, and his facts are undoubtedly correct, although one suspects there are many errors due to poor proof-reading, a few of which the reviewer has caught such as "1775" for "1756" on p. 83, "Aiken" for "Aiton" on p. 248, etc.

Unfortunately Mr. Sherwood has not arranged his material in the form now generally approved by reputable genealogists, nor has he made it easier for those using his book to follow through a given line by assigning each descendant an individual number. To add to this difficulty, he has failed to always indicate generation number, which would have helped some. Worst of all, there is no index, which is inexcusable in any book called a genealogy or containing genealogical data. One literally has to read the entire book to find what one wants.

The book does present, however, a great deal of the personality of its octogenarian author and his more immediate relatives, the type of record that very quickly becomes forever lost, once these individuals pass on. Herein lies its value.

NEW ENGLAND. The Real Founders of New England: stories of their life along the Coast, 1602-1628, by Charles Knowles Bolton. 8vo. Boston, 1929. $3.50. Order from The F. W. Faxon Company, 83 Francis Street, Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

This nicely printed book has been produced on a good heavy grade of book paper, and bound in a substantial dark blue cloth. It is illustrated by charming pen and ink sketches by Mrs. Ethel Stanwood Bolton, wife of the author; by maps drawn by Miss Marjorie Crandall; by reproductions of the title-pages of several early accounts of New England; and by facsimiles of the signatures of some of the early worthies.

Mr. Bolton, librarian of the Boston Athenaeum, and author of several other books of a historical-genealogical nature, has written in his usual delightful style about the early settlements along the New England coast, recounting many stories of hardships, many amusing incidents, and not a few accounts of disagreement among the Fathers. Mr. Bolton has so steeped himself in the history of the colonization of New England that his brew is strong and rich in flavour, great to the delectation of the connoisseur. Granted, Mr. Bolton could have greatly amplified his material, but this would have defeated his purpose, which was to produce a brief, readable account of these early settlers, which should serve both as a reference book for the harried librarian and as an impetus to further study for the genealogist or leisured amateur.

The condition of the country prior to settlement is first described. In the second chapter is to be found an account of the visitors to the coast between 1602, when Bartholomew Gosnold explored a portion, and 1622. Omitting any detail about the Plymouth settlement, which is so amply described in many places, he takes up the story of other settlements and attempts at settlement between 1622 and 1625 in Chapter Three. In Chapters Four to Six, the settlement of "Shawmut" (now Boston) and the connection of the Blaxton family with it is discussed. Chapter Seven is devoted to the "Outposts of Empire," other settlements along the coast. In the eighth chapter the story of the Blaxtons is continued; whereas the final chapter is devoted to an attempt to analyse "The Colonial Mind." There are four appendices: A, "A Tentative List of Old Planters and Sojourners in New England Before 6 September 1628," preceded by a brief but excellent bibliography of other such lists; B, "Early Settlements and Their Founders"; C, "Some Authorities," which comprises a fine, selected bibliography of material relating to this period of New England history; D, "Early Names" in which is listed the early names of present day towns and regions, a very valuable list, which we should like to see extended and amplified to include all such names for all New England towns and localities. There is a thorough index.

Mr. Bolton himself has very kindly supplied us with the following list of additions and corrections which have come to his notice:

P. 99, 17th line. For "deputy governor" read "an Assistant."
P. 100, last paragraph. Read: "On the 17th of June 1630 Winthrop and others." Also below: "While the men on the 12th of July put up tents," etc.
P. 105, 25th line. 1625 should be 1626, it is said.
P. 114, 2d line. Should read "cobbled street."
P. 138, 4th line. Read: "Stage Fort."
P. 150, Perhaps omit Fenton, Fisbell, Key, R. White.
P. 155, Add Samuel Johnson, brother of the famous Isaac.
P. 168, Add a trading post at Dorchester, described by Mr. Bolton in Boston Evening Transcript for 1 March 1930.

BOOK REVIEWS

By Gilbert H. Doane

This department is limited to a consideration of recent publications on the subject of American genealogy or colonial history. Books that may be of interest to our subscribers, especially those containing the genealogy of Connecticut families, are sometimes accorded a notice without request. Authors and publishers can make certain of securing a review by sending one copy of the book to the reviewer, Office of the Librarian, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb. Leonard. Legends, Loves and Loyalties of Old New England, by Caroline Leonard Goodenough. Published by the Author, Rochester, Mass. 8 vo. 344 pp.

This is an attractive, well-made book, bound in substantial dark blue cloth, a book easy to hold, although not a book that will stand heavy usage.

Mrs. Goodenough has in no sense compiled a formal genealogy of the family. Rather she has written an account of the ancestry of her grandparents and their descendants for the use of the family. Consequently we cannot subject this work to the rigid scrutiny that should be given a genealogical publication intended for general use and circulation. If Mrs. Goodenough waxes sentimental and effusive at times, she is within her rights; if she seems unduly proud of much royal ancestry, she is theoretically displaying that pride only to her relatives. This is one of the great advantages gained in publishing privately for the family!

The first 232 pages of this book are devoted to a running account of the lines of the Leonard, Haskell and Thompson families, and such matters as "Our Royal Ancestry" and "Our Pilgrim Ancestry." This is followed by an index. Unfortunately, the Addenda, some 96 pages, is bound after the index. Hence the index is practically buried in the middle of the volume, and is not to be found immediately, as a good index generally comes at the end of a volume. If this book is to be placed on library shelves, this is to be regretted.

In the "Addenda" Mrs. Goodenough has printed skeleton pedigrees of her other lines of descent. As no references or authorities are cited, it is difficult to judge the accuracy of these many lines. On the face of them it looks as though they were compiled in a genealogical library, where all sorts of books are used without discrimination. If the use of the oft-repeated but unacceptable Mayflower descent from Peter Brown through the reputed son, Peter, "Jr.," of Windsor, Conn., is typical, then each of the lines thus given must be carefully checked. Proof of the relationship of the two Peters has never been forthcoming, and the Society of Mayflower Descendants has consistently refused to accept for membership descendants of Peter of Windsor who have claimed a right to membership through him. Mrs. Goodenough is aware of the dispute over this relationship, for she speaks of it on pages 215-216, and concludes that Peter of Windsor must have been a son of Peter of Plymouth because a "lineal descendant." John Brown, writing in 1857 "only 237 years" later, called "himself a descendant on the side of his father of one of the company of the Mayflower who landed at Plymouth in 1620." John Brown, whoever he was, may have been such a descendant on the side of his father, but not necessarily in the Brown line, since he does not specify the line, however strong the assumption that he meant the Brown line. "Only 237 years" is a long period of time, and traditions are established in much shorter periods, traditions easily proved false.

The section devoted to royal ancestry is based on Browning's Americans of Royal Descent, a notoriously unreliable book. It is well known that Browning himself repudiated some of the pedigrees he printed, even in the ninth edition of his much used book. Many others have since been proved incorrect. We hope that the new edition, now being prepared by Mr. John S. Wurts, of Germantown, Philadelphia, will be more reliable, and that no pedigree will be included which is not supported by documentary evidence of the most valid and conclusive kind. This reviewer cannot criticize the royal ancestry of the Leonards, based on a supposed descent from the barons Dacre, as he has had no occasion to check the line. However, the inclination is to distrust it in the absence of references and authorities other than Browning.

Incidentally this book is a new and enlarged edition of Mrs. Goodenough's Memoirs of the Leonard, Thompson and Haskell Families, originally published in 1928.

Revolutionary Soldiers. List of Connecticut Revolutionary Soldiers Mentioned in Beckwith's Almanac, New Haven 1850 to 1870 inclusive; also War of 1812; 1856 to 1889 inclusive. Compiled by Miss Clara Louise Weed, 1927. Multigraphed, 16 pages, indexed. Order from the compiler, 600 Orange Street, New Haven, Conn.; $2.50.

Interest in those who took an active part in the establishment of the nation continues to be one of the mainsprings of historical and genealogical research. Every year sees more and more work done towards the rescuing from oblivion of the memory of those who served in the Revolutionary War. Every step taken in this direction is a welcome contribution.

Miss Weed's compilation contains the names, ages at death, and residences of the last Connecticut survivors of the war, with occasionally additional facts concerning them. It is difficult for the average searcher to find a complete and accessible file of Beckwith's annual almanac, which from 1850 contained a department, "Chronicles of Events in Connecticut." Even when accessible, it requires much time to thumb through these unindexed pamphlets. The present compilation, which lists 180 names of Connecticut soldiers, should therefore prove useful, and is recommended to historical libraries. D. L. J.

Bullard. Bullard and Allied Families: The American Ancestors of George Newton Bullard and Mary Elizabeth Bullard. By Edgar J. Bullard, 2111 David Stott Bldg., Detroit, Mich., 1930. Cloth, 8 vo., illustrated, indexed, pp. 288+49. Also: Other Bullards, a supplementary pamphlet, pp. 75+10. The two, $10.00.

This book, attractively bound, well arranged and indexed, is devoted to the ancestry of Mr. Bullard's children. Very full treatment is accorded to the main families,—Bullard, Perrine, Baldwin, Dutcher, Newton, Perrin, and Graham, collateral descendants being brought down to a considerable extent. The other family names included are Allen, Almy, Ashley, Backus, Babcock, Bacon, Ball, Barbour, Barnes, Beers, Benjamin, Bennett (three families), Bemis, Bigelow, Blagge, Bradstreet, Brown, Bruen, Bugbee, Burritt, Carpenter, Caulkins, Chamberlin, Champion, Charles, Clark (two families), Cooper (two families), Cooke, Cross, Curtis, Derby, Dudley, Eddy, Ely, Fenton, Fitch, Flagg, French, Frisbie, Fulham, Fuller, Goodsell, Graves, Griswold, Gunn, Hagar, Hand, Hapgood, Haskell, Heath, Hemingway, Hewes, Hoadley, House, Howe, Hutchinson, Ide, Jennings, Joiner, Jones, Kilborn, Kingsley, Lakin, Larkin, LaRue, Lathrop, Linsley, Livermore, Loker, Mitchell, Moore (two families), Morgan, Nase, Nash, Osborn (two families), Oviatt, Palmer, Patterson, Phippeny, Pierce (two families), Porter, Postal, Pratt (two families), Redway, Rice, Root, Rowley, Royce, Senior, Sherman (two families), Simmons, Skinner, Smith, Stebbins, Taylor, Thompson, Treadway, Turner, Tybott, Venables, Wade, Ward, Warren (two families), West, Weston, Whale, Wheeler, Wheelock, Whitney, Wilder, Willard, Willey, Williams, Wilson, Winton, Yorke.

As the writer supplied information to the author on a few of these families, it is in better taste to refrain from comment or criticism. The Bullard pamphlet, separately bound, rescues from oblivion much data that the author collected while working out his own line; it will help some descendants in establishing their lines, and constitutes a start towards a history of the Bullard family. It is our understanding that a second pamphlet, containing one important correction (on the Bennett family) and many additional ancestral lines, together with further miscellaneous data on branches of the Bullard family, will be issued Fitch. History of the Fitch Family 1400-1930, by Roscoe Conkling Fitch. Privately published. 2 vols.

This is a publication which has been eagerly awaited by genealogical students. Sumptuous in every mechanical feature, beautifully illustrated and rich in tabular pedigrees, the two volumes are, nevertheless, keenly disappointing to the present reviewer, who had looked forward hopefully to an authentic history of this Connecticut family.

Research seems to have been confined almost entirely to tracing the family in England; and, since this work was done under the direction of the College of Heralds, this section of the book has undoubted interest for descendants who desire to trace back of the arrival of the family on American shores.

From a genealogical point of view, the value of the book stops there. The account of the American Fitches is both incomplete and inexcusably inaccurate. So far as the incompleteness is concerned, it appears to have been deliberate. The design of the book was quite evidently to enlarge on the achievements of a few prominent branches, and this apparently did not leave space for any consideration at all of the less prominent branches. This is so patently true that the title of the book is actually a misnomer, and a less misleading title would be "Favored Fitches"—for only the favored ones are in it.

The history of the early generations in Connecticut appears to have been based largely on secondary sources, and this may explain the surprising nature and number of inaccuracies that have found their way into these volumes. For example, it is stated (page 106) that the first Thomas Fitch of Norwalk was Deputy to the General Court, 1673, 1676, 1680-86, 1691-92, 1694, and Deputy Governor of Connecticut. The public services of this man can all be found (aside from local town services) in the printed Colonial Records of Connecticut, and it is strange that these were not consulted. They show that Thomas Fitch was Deputy in 1673, but no other year; that he was Captain of the Fairfield County Troop in 1673 and 1676; and that he was Commissioner (i. e., Justice) for the town of Norwalk in some of the other years mentioned. He was never at any time Deputy Governor of the Colony.

When such startling misinformation as the above is found in a family history, it is too much to hope that the genealogical data contained therein will prove reasonably accurate. Turning to the family of Samuel Fitch (pages 204-206), one of the brothers of the recently created Deputy Governor, it is correctly stated that he left two sons, Samuel and Thomas. But the second Samuel is given two wives, Sarah Bryan and Mary Griswold. Only the first of these belonged to him, and he died in

Printed from Family Tree Maker, CD179 Family History: Connecticut Genealogies #1, Families of Ancient New Haven, Vol. VIII, Families of Ancient New Haven, Trussell, Tucker, Turhand, Turner, © Broderbund Software, Inc., Banner Blue Division, July 2, 1998

1690 leaving an only daughter; his wife Sarah survived him and died in 1698. The Samuel who married Mary Griswold was actually a third Samuel, nephew of the second Samuel, and son of his brother Thomas of Wethersfield.

Incidentally, another blunder is made in this branch, due to following Stiles' History of Wethersfield in its statement that Abigail Fitch, who married Abraham Kimberly in 1696, was daughter of Thomas Fitch of Wethersfield by his second wife, Sarah Boardman. Since Abigail Goodrich, the first wife of Thomas Fitch, died in 1684, only some twelve years before the daughter Abigail married, it is obvious that the daughter Abigail could not have been by the second wife unless she married at the age of eleven or younger. As a matter of fact, this Abigail Fitch was called granddaughter in the will of her maternal grandmother, the mother of Abigail (Goodrich) Fitch.

The early generations of the family of Joseph Fitch of Windsor, another of the immigrant brothers, have been badly confused. This is a very difficult branch, and its elucidation should not have been attempted without a thorough investigation of original sources in Windsor.

It is quite apparent that only the most superficial work was done on the early American generations, and that the account given in this "History" was based largely on unreliable printed "authorities" and not on contemporary records. It is a great pity that a publication of this type, so splendidly accoutred in binding, paper, and illustrations, should be so sadly defective in what is after all the most essential part of a family history,—the genealogical data.

The accounts given of some of the prominent descendants contain much that will be of interest to the branches concerned. A large section of one volume is devoted to the career of that unfortunate genius, John Fitch, whose claim to be considered the inventor of the steamboat is here presented in detail. Although those who have studied the subject are usually willing to concede the priority of Fitch's achievement to that of Fulton, the public in general is not well informed on the subject, and it is a pleasure to see the evidence for Fitch so fully presented. As a matter of fact, several before Fulton successfully operated ships by steam, and the credit, as with most important inventions, should not be given entirely to a single inventor.

May we not hope that the Fitch Family Association will recognize the desirability of issuing additional volumes, not only to correct the genealogical errors contained in the present two volumes, but also to include the record of the very large number of branches which are missing from the present work? Edwards-May. Richard Edwards and his wife Catherine Pond May: their ancestors, lives and descendants. By Rev. Maurice Dwight Edwards, D.D. (c 1931). 206 pp. Obtainable from Rev. Maurice D. Edwards, 423 Laurel Avenue, St. Paul, Minn. $3.00.

This is a well made volume printed on Strathmore Wayside Text (glazed) paper, attractively bound in three-quarters dark brown cloth.

The Rev. Dr. Edwards, great-grandson of the well-known Jonathan Edwards, has written a type of genealogy rarely found in America, but rather common in England. He is quite justified in using this "narrative style" since he designed this volume purely as a family memorial and wrote it to preserve some of his memories for the descendants of his parents. The families from which he descends are all well-known, some of them indeed illustrious in the annals of this country, so it was not necessary for him to go into full detail about even his line of descent in each family. In each generation he has included only the child from whom he derives descent, but he has attempted to portray the character and community position of each ancestor. If he speaks with pride of the achievements of some of his ancestors, such as Jonathan Edwards, Thomas Hooker, and the "Apostle" John Eliot, he does so with the decorum of a fine and truly bred gentleman and refrains from florid over-statements and vain boastings. Dr. Edwards's style is pleasing and easy to read, so even to one of no connection with the families of which he writes the book proves interesting and worth reading. To anyone who proposes to publish a memorial of his ancestors this is an example of one type worth following. However, no references are given, a criticism which Dr. Edwards anticipates in his preface. The index is adequate.

Chapter One (pp. 11-60) is devoted to the ancestry of Richard Edwards, a grandson of Rev. Jonathan Edwards, the Divine.

This includes such families as the Pierrepont, Ogden, Hatfield, Woodbridge, Eliot, Merrick and Day. Chapter Two (pp. 61-89) comprises the ancestry of Catherine Pond May, wife of Richard Edwards, including the Bridge, Huntington and Avery families, as well as several Dutch families, which were carefully checked by Mr. Howard S. F. Randolph of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society. Chapter Three (pp. 90-132) is devoted to full and interesting biographical accounts of Richard Edwards and his wife. Chapter Four (pp. 133-206) records the activities of their descendants.

Arnold-Luckey. Arnold Luckey family ties: authorized history and genealogy complete, comprehensive in form and extensive in scope. Showing the exact connection and giving the complete line and lineage of Drusilla Arnold Ancestor and Descendants in perfect order from Alfred the Great, King of England, born 849, down to the last child of the family up to October, 1931. Written expressly by Leonard Wilson Arnold and Ethel Zwick Luckey. Published by the Rev. Leonard W. A. Luckey, Ph.D., D.D. New York City, New York, 1931. 168 pp. Obtainable from the Rev. Dr. L. W. A. Luckey, 43 West 84th St., New York City.

This is a nicely made book, printed on glazed paper, and suitably bound in black cloth.

It is unfortunate that the contents of the book are not compatible with either its format or its too suggestive title, which we have quoted in full as an ample warning to the curious! Except insofar as it contains the record (in none too comprehensible form) of the descendants of Drusilla (Arnold) Luckey (1820-1885), this volume is of no value to a genealogist. The "illustrious" descent of the Arnold family reads as though it had been copied from Browning. It may be correct. Most of the book is taken up with highly laudatory and florid descriptions of the glories of the family and with innumerable sentimental verses. The index is not a name index, which would have been useful, but merely a quasi-subject index, through which one learns that such valuable items as "Birthstones and their significance!" can be found on page 162, and "Cornerstone laid July 4, 1872" on page 54!

Sandford. Robert Sandford and his wife Ann Adams Sandford with some of their descendants, 1615-1930. Also brief notes on several Allied Families including Alden, Brewster, Chilton, Stinson, Topping, Standish, White, Sumner, Rogers, and others. By Josephine Sandford Ware. Printed for private circulation by the Tuttle Company, Rutland, Vt. (1930?). 85 pp. Obtainable from Mrs. H. F. Ware, 337 Marlborough St., Boston, Mass. $3.75.

This is a very well printed book on good paper, bound in dark blue cloth and neatly lettered in gold.

Following the title and dedicatory pages are brief yet ample introductory and explanatory notes, after which three pages are devoted to a brief account of the origin of the name and an outline of the authentic history of Robert Sandford's known progenitors in England. Pages 11-78 comprise the history of Robert Sandford, the pioneer of Hartford, Conn., and his descendants. In the first five generations not all the male descendants of the name are traced, but beginning with the sixth generation the records given are very complete, and the family may be justly proud of this record of their relationships. Occasionally the text is interrupted by an outline pedigree of the ancestry of a wife or mother.

Mrs. Ware has followed the well-known "Register" system of numbering, and has generally cited her references, although occasionally the source of her information is not noted. An adequate and carefully made index occupies pages 78-85.

Wentworth. The Genealogy of Edward Norris Wentworth, Junior. Special project Submitted in Courses in Community Life and Advanced Biology at the University High School, University of Chicago, June 1928. 85 pp. Obtainable from Edward Norris Wentworth, Armour's Live Stock Bureau, Union Stock Yards, Chicago, Ill.

This pamplet is bound in attractive stiff paper covers, and contains two large charts tipped in.

Rarely does one find a fifteen year old boy who is both active and healthy and interested in genealogy. When one does, his historical interest, as well as his health, is to be cultivated. We congratulate young Mr. Wentworth on his fine beginning as a genealogist, and we hope he will continue his study of this fascinating field either as a vocation or as a hobby. In consideration of his age and the nature of his work as a high school project we cannot criticize this compilation for its lack of references, but we hope that he will learn their value as he grows older. The work is adequately indexed and as an example of industry puts many other volumes of ancestral compilations to shame.

McCutcheon. The McCutcheon (Cutcheon) family records. Allied families of McClary, Tripp, Brown and Critchett; also Mayflower line of Marie Amnie Warner (Mrs. Byron M. Cutcheon) through Warner, Cooper, Rockwell, Foote, Whitney, Treat, Canfield, Clark, Willoughby, Hotchkiss, Ives, Cook, Buell, Fitch to Governor Bradford. And Ancestry of Betsey Webster Carr (Mrs. Lewis M. son, Ford, Edwards, Morrill, Waldo, Cogswell, Morse, Perley, Chase. Compiled by Florence McCutcheon McKee (Mrs. S. W.), Grand Rapids, Mich., Commonwealth Printing Company, 1931. Obtainable from Mrs. S. W. McKee, 418 North Avenue, N. W., Grand Rapids, Mich. $5.00.

This volume, substantially bound in fabrikoid, is not printed in a distinctive manner, although the type is clear and easily readable. In fact, it is the sort of book-making usually produced by a commercial printer unaccustomed to handling genealogical books.

The first part of this volume (pages 3-127) deals with the descendants of Phaedris McCutcheon, who settled in New Hampshire in 1719. It is to be hoped that Mrs. McKee's record of the McCutcheons is more accurately compiled than that of some of the families represented in this book. She has cited deeds and pension records for the earlier generations of the McCutcheons: the later generations are apparently based on the personal knowledge of descendants. Unfortunately, Mrs. McKee's system of numbering is not standard and not immediately comprehensible, although a little study will quickly determine the arrangement. In fact, she has reverted to the old and no longer generally used system of carrying out the descendants of a given child to the present generation, before taking up the next child's record. For example, on page 37 we find the record of no. 65, who chances to be of the sixth generation, and immediately following is the record of no. 5, of the third generation. Fortunately for the future user of this genealogy there is an adequate index, which, in a measure, helps to clear the chaos of this arrangement.

Pages 130-316 deal with the allied families mentioned on the title-page and many others. Most of these records are frankly copied from genealogical books old and new, which is quite permissible in a book of this type, granted the compiler is meticulously careful to give references and refrain from citing notoriously inaccurate compilations. Unfortunately, the compiler is not always careful, and many lines are entirely undocumented and contain no references to the sources of her information. Some of these repeat age-old errors—an unavoidable pitfall for the mere copyist—and others make new errors which future copyists will undoubtedly repeat ad infinitum. Had Mrs. McKee consulted the New Haven Genealogical Magazine for her Ives-Cook-Hotchkiss-Clark connections she would have avoided such errors and mis-statements as this: (p. 222) "Ebenezer Clark, born Nov. 29, 1651. Died April 30, 1721. Married May 6, 1678, Sarah, daughter of James Peck of New Haven. She died May 20, 1696, and he married Elizabeth Royce, Dec. 22, 1696. Children of Ebenezer Clark and Elizabeth Royce: They had nine children, among them the second was Elizabeth, born Sept. 24, 1698. . .'' Actually, Ebenezer Clark married Sarah ———,* whose surname is unknown, for his first wife, and for his second, Mrs. Elizabeth (Parker) Royce, daughter of John and Hannah (Bassett) Parker and widow of Josiah Royce. Moreover, Elizabeth was the first child of the second marriage, not the second, and was born Sept. 24, 1697, not 1698, as given.

On page 242, Mrs. McKee repeats the myth that George Carr of Salisbury, Massachusetts, came in the Mayflower. This has been denied by George Ernest Bowman, one of the great authorities on the Mayflower families (cf. The Mayflower Descendant, vol. 23, p. 76, where his article on ''False and Faked Mayflower Claims'' may be found). She quotes the notoriously unreliable New England families, edited by the late W. R. Cutter, as her authority.

Hence, aside from the original work on the McCutcheon, McKee (pages 284-86), Warner (pages 186-97), and one or two other families, this book holds very little that is of value to the serious genealogist.

Selden. Selden Ancestry: A Family History Giving the Ancestors and Descendants of George Shattuck Selden and his wife Elizabeth Wright Clark. By Sophia Selden Rogers, Elizabeth Selden Lane, and Edwin van Deusen Selden. Published by the last-named, Oil City, Penn., 1931. Octavo, 523 pp. Indexed, illustrated, pedigree charts. Order from Mrs. A. H. Lane, 4 Fitch Avenue, Auburn, N. Y. Price, $7.00; morocco binding, $10.00.

An unusual book in several respects, this family history is well bound, well illustrated, and printed on an excellent grade of paper. The price is extremely moderate for a book of this quality, and cannot cover even the printing costs, not to mention the work of research and compilation.

The first 232 pages contain a history of the descendants of Thomas Selden, who was baptized at Wadhurst, co. Sussex, England, 17 Mar. 1616/7, and came to America presumably before 1636, first appearing of record at Hartford, Conn., in 1639. His ancestry has been traced with apparent certainty to William Selkeden of Horton in Upper Beeding, born about 1485, died in 1549, and his probable connection shown with the Selkedens who were seated at Ecclesden from at least early in the thirteenth century. Upwards of thirteen hundred descendants of Thomas Selden have been traced, bringing most lines down to 1800 or beyond, and many of them to the present day. In the line of the

* The statement that Sarah was daughter of James Peck of New Haven originated in Davis's History of Wallingford. New Haven records are entirely silent as to existence of such a James, and Mr. Clarence D. Smith, who spent years collecting material for a Peck genealogy, was unable to place Sarah in the Peck family at all. The History of Wallingford is so poor an authority that this Peck statement merits no consideration.—D. L. J.

compilers, full copies of original documents are printed, and the authorities are referred to for the other lines. The arrangement of material is simple and easily comprehensible.

About 150 pages are devoted to other ancestral lines, and the more unusual lines have been selected for special attention. Descended paternally from New England stock of English origin, and maternally from Pennsylvania-Irish families, the most fascinating lines come through the two paternal great-grandmothers. One of these descended from Philippe Hubert [Philip Hubbard] of Kittery, Maine, whose ancestry has been traced in the Island of Jersey for six generations to Jean Hubert, born about 1450.

The other great-grandmother was daughter of General Alexandre de Vincent de Mazade (1735-1808), Governor-General of the Island of St. Thomas, and it is through this connection that the most remarkable ancestry can be traced. Himself the scion of a noble French seigneurial house, his wife was Marie Thérèse Sophie de Chappotin, and her mother was Marie Françoise de Santo Domingo. The latter descended from a noble Castilian house. One of her ancestors, Don Pedro de Santo Domingo, distinguished himself in the wars against the Moors under Ferdinand and Isabella. The house became domiciled in France, and François de Santo Domingo married Elizabeth de la Presse (or Presa, to use the Spanish form). She was sister of Juan de la Presa, Regidor [Governor] perpetual of the City of Lima, Peru, an office afterwards held by one of her sons. Apparently her family goes back to Domingo de la Presa who was associated with Pizarro in Peru, was first Secretary of the City of Lima in 1536, and was elected Alcalde and Regidor in 1538. The founders of Jamestown and Plymouth were late comers in comparison with the founders of modern Peru under Pizarro, and few if any families of European extraction now living in the United States can claim a more ancient ancestral connection with the western hemisphere.

If space permitted, we should like to cite further details from this interesting history. The long appendix (of 68 pages) sets forth the full documentary evidence for the English ancestry of the Selden family and the European ancestry of the Santo Domingos. The index is entirely adequate, but it is to be noted that the French surnames (as Chappotin and Valois) will all be found indexed under 'de' (as de Chappotin and de Valois). They would not be indexed under the preposition in a French peerage or genealogical book.

This volume will be welcomed by all descendants of Thomas Selden, as there has not been until now a history of that family. It has been carefully compiled and contains the results of an immense amount of research; and the compilers are to be congratulated for a remarkable achievement. D. L. J.

Bullard. Bullard Family Coat of Arms. Copies for sale by E. J. Bullard, 2111 David Stott Bldg., Detroit, Mich. Price: $2.00 each; six copies, $10.00.

This is a handsomely executed coat of arms in colors, 8 x 10, suitable for framing. It is from a painting by Mr. John Loos of New York City, an artist of repute. The source of the arms is stated in print on the reverse, where it is also frankly stated that the exact descent of the American family from the European family to whom the arms pertain has not been traced. Descendants of the American family may therefore exercise their own judgment or pleasure as to whether they care to assume these arms. If they do, they can obtain no more carefully executed or beautifully printed copy of the arms than is here offered. The price is moderate for a colored print of this character, and undoubtedly the arms will be of interest to all of the Bullard name. D. L. J.

Lake. The Lake Family of Derby, Conn., and Greene Co., N. Y. Compiled during the period 1921-1931 by Helen (Nellie) Lake Gibson and James Stewart Gibson of Montclair, N. J. Mimeographed, 22 pp. Not for sale; address the compilers if interested.

A very full genealogical account is given of the descendants of David Lake (1770-1856) and Sarah Vorce (1781-1857) of Derby, Conn., and Windham, N. Y. David was great-grandson of Thomas Lake, the first of the name who settled at Stratford, Conn. The descents of David and Sarah are set forth from Thomas Lake, Henry Tomlinson, Robert Walker, and Moses Wheeler. The rest of the monograph is devoted to a partial Lake genealogy in the line of David. The material is well arranged, covering eight generations. The lack of an index is not felt to the extent it would be in a larger brochure.

Every publication of this type helps to preserve family records for the benefit of future generations. All descendants of this branch of the Lake family can claim a Revolutionary ancestor in Elnathan Lake. The earlier generations could be further elucidated by research in record sources. D. L. J.

Araldico Romano (Rome), Genealogiska Samfundet I Finland (Helsingfors), Dansk Genealogisk Institut (Copenhagen), Real Sociedad Hispano-Americana de Genealogia y Heraldica (Mexico City), American Eugenics Society, numerous American Genealogical and Historical societies. Volume I. 1932. Pub. by The Institute of American Genealogy, Chicago, Ill. 382 pp.

The Handbook issued by the Institute, serviceably bound, is the most valuable publication which that organization has yet published. In some respects, it will be very useful to the genealogical public. The chief value of the book, in our estimation, is to be found in the sections called "Genealogies in Course of Compilation" and "Who's Who in Genealogy." The former section lists surnames of families in which various persons are interested, with direct reference to the names of these persons in the latter section, where their specific wants and offerings may be seen. It will thus be possible for one who is interested in the genealogy of a certain family to ascertain the addresses of others who are interested in the same family. In providing this service, the Institute has taken a stride towards fulfilling its self-advertised function of "The National Clearing House for Genealogical Information."

Since it is announced that this Handbook will be issued annually, suggestions and even a little adverse criticism will doubtless be welcomed by the editor, and if they are judicious, they will help towards improving the next edition. The title of the section, "Genealogies in Course of Preparation," is a misnomer. While it includes references to genealogies in course of preparation, a large majority of the references are to persons who desire information regarding these families or who have information to offer (freely, or in exchange, or for pay) on certain branches of these families. For example: the present writer was recently engaged to edit for publication a family history which was chiefly compiled by a gentleman who did not live to attend to the final preparation and publication of his work. It embodies the labors of years on his part, and is one of the most accurate and comprehensive works of the kind ever compiled. Naturally, we turned to this family name in the section, "Genealogies in Course of Compilation," and were surprised to find six references.

One of these was to a person who aided and collaborated with the original compiler of the complete genealogy, and who does possess a large amount of data. Two references were to persons with whom we have corresponded; they possess some knowledge of one or two branches, but their knowledge, in comparison with the 50,000 names enrolled by the deceased compiler, must be described as meagre. The other three references were to persons who desired information.

Printed from Family Tree Maker, CD179 Family History: Connecticut Genealogies #1, Families of Ancient New Haven, Vol. VIII, Deaths in New Haven, 1820, © Broderbund Software, Inc., Banner Blue Division, July 9, 1998

The compilation containing the complete family history would not be found by one who depended on the Handbook for information, since it contains no reference to the genealogy which is actually in course of compilation; and of the six references given, only one is to a person who possesses extensive data on the family. After experimenting with other surnames listed in the Handbook, we find that this example is a typical one, and that the title of the section, "Genealogies in Course of Compilation" is decidedly misleading. That the title should be broader in its scope, we believe is self-evident. "Information Offered and Sought," or "Genealogical Wants and Offerings," would be less misleading titles.

The immense collections of family data in the possession of various historical societies throughout the country are of course not included in the first edition of the Handbook. We hope that they may be included in later editions, for very often the most valuable manuscript data were collected years ago, from family records and from the memory of people long dead, and such information could not be duplicated by the most intensive research to-day. It is our impression that the collections of manuscript data in possession of historical societies outweigh in value and volume, the manuscript data still in private hands. To index it, by surnames and perhaps also geographically, would be one of the greatest services that could be performed in behalf of the genealogical public.

Other sections of the Handbook impress us much less favorably than those already described. The introductory "First Steps in Genealogical Research" is so sketchy as to have little value, and it might better be amplified or omitted entirely. With commendable self-complacency, the first two authorities listed by Mr. Virkus as "General Reference Sources" are his own Compendium of American Genealogy and Magazine of American Genealogy, which many discriminating genealogists would not accord quite so high a place. For general usefulness, they cannot be classed with Munsell's Index, or the First Census, to which he accords fourth and fifth places; and for meticulous accuracy, they can hardly be classed with Hotten's Original Lists. It is not fair to the inexperienced genealogist, in a list of the ten most important general reference sources, to give first place to his own two publications, and to include American Ancestry and Colonial Families of the United States, while omitting more important works. Without intending in any way to disparage the usefulness in their own sphere of any of the publications mentioned, this list of ten general sources exhibits a woeful lack of appreciation of genealogical values.

When we come to Colony Reference Sources, it is surprising to find no mention of Plymouth or New Haven Colonies, though apparently it was the intention of the editor to include them in Massachusetts and Connecticut respectively. Nevertheless, we can find no mention of The Mayflower Descendant, with its large amount of dependable data, under Massachusetts, nor of the New Haven Colony Records under Connecticut. The failure to mention our own New Haven Genealogical Magazine was to be expected; but we do fail to understand the omission of Mrs. Ljungsted's valuable periodical containing court records from the southern states. We can only repeat, that this section requires elaboration or deletion.

The Geographical Register would be extremely useful if one could feel sure that only competent genealogists were listed. Apparently it was the editor's intention to give the address of a genealogist for every county in the country, and several for a county if possible. To our positive knowledge, one lady received an invitation to be entered as a genealogist for her locality, who has had no experience in genealogical work and has never received a fee for research; she ignored the invitation, but would all be equally scrupulous? The librarian of an historical society is listed with the letter 'd' which means that she is on the Institute's list of genealogists, yet she assures us that she has never replied to a single letter or circular from the Institute. Naturally, one must expect some mistakes in a work so extensive as the Geographical Register. There are times when it is useful to know that someone in some distant locality is at least interested in genealogy and willing to undertake research; and those who desire to obtain research in that locality will have to "take a chance" on the degree of competence they will encounter.

May we suggest in closing that it might be well, in preparing the next edition, for Mr. Virkus to proof-read more carefully the names of the foreign societies of which he is a member, and to instruct his printers to purchase a supply of accents and umlauts? D. L. J.

17. DANIEL[3] ANTRAM, son of Thomas[2], b. 8mo (Oct.?) 6, 1721, at Springfield; d. May 3, 1819, in Virginia; md. by lic. of Jan. 30, 1758, to Susannah Weaver, dau. of Edward and Mary (Staples) Weaver, of New Hanover, Burl. Co. (NJMB A:73; NJW:5249C; NJA 34:571; Antrim Gen.:67.) On March 30, 1756, Daniel bought of William Budd, a 116-acre farm which straddled the line between Northampton and Springfield twps., which he conveyed to Abraham Lippincott on May 19, 1768, for £700, the deed indicating his residence at that time as Northampton. (WJD AE:321.) On Sep. 1, 1760, the couple were condemned by Burlington M.M. for having married contrary to the discipline of Friends, but they made acknowledgment of their fault, and were reinstated. On Jan. 2, 1769, they and their children, Rachel, Levi, and Edith were granted a certificate to the Hopewell M.M. in Virginia. (BuQR; HEQG 2:192-3.) On Aug. 7, 1769, Daniel and 201 John Antram presented their certificates to Hopewell M.M., in Frederick Co., Va., and requested that they and other Friends living in Stafford Co., near Potomac Run, be permitted to hold meetings there. A committee appointed to look into the matter reported that the group lived twenty miles nearer Fairfax Mtg. than Hopewell Mtg., but when the former decided that they could not accept the petitioners, they were accepted by Hopewell on Oct. 2, 1769. On Oct. 5, 1772, Daniel Antram was appointed overseer of the subsidiary Stafford Meeting. He was very frequently a witness at marriages authorized by Hopewell M.M. (Hopewell Friends History, 1734-1934, pp. 81 ff., 375, &c.). The Antrim gen. lists five children not mentioned in the Burlington certificate, but does not include dau. Edith, although she was living as late as Dec., 1783.

On Jan. 1, 1749/50, Burl. M.M. "condemned" him for marrying outside of Quaker rules, but the same day he acknowledged his error, and his wife was received as a member. The births of four children out of the first seven are entered on the M.M. records, and the full family record is printed in Antrim gen., the exactness of some of the dates being open to question. (HEQG 2:165, 193.) His will, June 20, 1806-Feb. 29, 1812, leaves to son Adin, five lots of land in Springfield Twp., including one on the N. side of the road from Jobstown to Slab Town, where Adin was then living. The residue was to be divided between four other children, William, Thomas, Martha Scattergood, and Prudence Ewing. (NJA 41:13.)

Children by second wife:*

2. ii. JOHN, b. about 1649.
3. iii. JONATHAN, b. about 1653.
4. iv. DAVID, b. about 1656.
5. v. RICHARD (probably son of Richard), b. about 1658.
   vi. PRISCILLA (probably daughter of Richard), b. about 1662. On 25 Mar. 1684/5 Priscilla Knight was summoned to the Newport Court for fornication (Newport County Court Files, book A, p. 70).
   vii. REBECCA (probably daughter of Richard), b. about 1665. She was probably the Rebecca Knight who gave half a crown towards the building of the Quaker Meeting House at Mashapaug (near Providence) in 1702.

2. JOHN[2] KNIGHT (Richard[1]), of East Greenwich, R. I., and Norwich, Conn., born about 1649, died between 26 Mar. 1695 and 27 Oct. 1701.† He married ANN ———, who, after her husband's death, seems to have moved, with her sons, to Providence, as the Providence records state, under date of 27 Oct. 1701, that Anna Knight has fallen into the town's care and that John Kelley is to care for her. On 11 Jan. 1701/2 she was dead, and her inventory was allowed.

John Knight is repeatedly called eldest son and heir of Richard. On 11 May 1674 he was indicted at Newport for taking a bridle and on 14 June 1687, although summoned to the court at Rochester (Kingstown) he appeared in the Newport court. (Newport County Court Files, book A, pp. 20, 82.) About 1678 he received Lot 23 in the division of East Greenwich lots and Lot 15 in the first division of East Greenwich town lots. These lots he later sold to Henry Matterson (East Greenwich Land Evidence, vol. 1). He was admitted a freeman at East Greenwich on 2 May 1682. On 10 Oct. 1683 Sarah Knight, widow, "now residing in East Greenwich," conveyed to her eldest son, John Knight, "now living in East Greenwich," a ten-acre lot and house and also a farm in the first division of land in that town (ib., vol. 1, p. 9). This last was sold on 8 Nov. 1688 by John Knight of Deptford (i. e., East Greenwich) to Gideon Freeborn of Portsmouth. It comprised in all about 90 acres. (Ib., vol. 2, p. 236.) This was evidently preparatory to his removal into Connecticut. On 24 Oct. 1687 Capt. James Fitch of Norwich, Conn., leased his farm at Peagscomsuch (after 1699 in Plainfield, Conn., and after 1703 in Canterbury, Conn.) for twenty years to James

Fitch —

*Of the children here given there is direct evidence that John was the eldest son and heir and that David was John's brother. There can be no doubt that Jonathan also was a son of Richard. Jonathan settled in Warwick and Providence, and the children of his brother John later moved thither from Connecticut. Jonathan named a son Richard. David, son of the first Richard Knight, had also a son Jonathan. Jonathan of Warwick and Providence acquired 200 acres in the Hall and Knight Purchase. It is very likely that Richard, Priscilla, and Rebecca were also children of Richard, as there was no other Knight family in Rhode Island but that of Richard. Toby Knight, the early settler of Newport, left, apparently, no family.

†On the former date John Knight of Norwich is mentioned (Westerly Land Evidence, vol. 2, p. 44 b), and on the latter date his widow was a charge on the town of Providence.

Sweet, Henry Sweet, Benjamin Sweet, and John Knight, all "living in the Narragansett Country." (New London County Court, bundle of papers for 1705.) On 16 Sept. 1690 John Knight sued James Sweet for his portion of the rent due Fitch (New London County Court Records, vol. 7, p. 32). On 21 June 1692 John and David Knight of Norwich, Conn., made Henry Hall their attorney to defend their rights in the Chippacchog lands, i. e., the Hall and Knight Purchase in Westerly (Westerly Deeds, book 2, p. 44). James Fitch of Canterbury, Conn., testified, on 27 Mar. 1711, that in 1694 John Knight, then [1711] deceased, came with his brother David to the deponent's house in Norwich and declared that he had sold all his rights in the tract of land purchased by his deceased father and Henry Hall. On 31 July 1711 Joseph Devol of Stonington, Conn., deposed that in 1693, when he lived in Westerly, he surveyed the Chepechewog purchase of Hall and Knight in the Narragansett Country for Mr. Henry Hall of Westerly and Mr. John Knight, "who then lived near Narrage in a place now known by the name of Canterbury in Connecticut and for Mr. David Knight of Woodstock in Boston Government." He further deposed that he made a plot of the divisions for them and for the persons who purchased of them, namely, Job Babcock, 200 acres, Peter Wells, 100 acres, William Tanner, 100 acres, John Sheldon, 200 acres, John Crandal, 180 acres, Jeremiah Crandall, 180 acres, Gershom Cottrell, 180 acres, James Ray, 100 acres, and Jonathan Knight 200 acres. (From the papers in the case of Knight v. Babcock.)

Ann Knight signed her husband's deeds in East Greenwich on 13 Feb. 1684/5 and 8 Mar. 1684/5, and at the latter date she is styled "my wife that now is." (East Greenwich Land Evidence, vol. 1, pp. 18, 34.)

THOMAS LILLIBRIDGE OF NEWPORT, R. I., AND HIS DESCENDANTS*

By Joel N. Eno, A.M., of New Haven, Conn.

1. Thomas[1] Lillibridge, the founder of the Lillibridge family in the United States, was born in England in 1662. His name first appears in this country attached to a petition, dated Newport, Sept. 26, 1699, to the Earl of Bellomont, to use his influence with "his Majesty" William III. for the establishment of an Episcopal church at Newport (S. G. Arnold, History of R. I., vol. 1, p. 599). This was Trinity church, in which Thomas Lillibridge was a warden till 1713, and where he owned pew 8 till 1719. He was admitted a freeman at Newport, May 6, 1701, and is mentioned as a vestryman in Narragansett church, 1718. He settled in old Westerly (now Richmond) in 1720, where he died Aug. 29, 1724. Besides personal estate inventoried at £1160, 18s., and two slaves, he left by his will, 1724, two houses in Newport, land in the "Narragansett country," and old Westerly, besides other "unsettled lands"; also a maintenance to his brother Edward, "if he shall come into this country"; and a bequest "unto John my brother's son"—perhaps he who married Mary Joslin in South Kingston, Mar. 29, 1730. Many of the records in Newport being destroyed by the British during the Revolution, the records of Thomas Lillibridge's Newport life are meagre, but indicate that he married first Mary, daughter of Henry and Mary Hobson (Austin, Genealogical Dictionary of R. I., additions and corrections concluded, under Hobson); and secondly Sarah Lewis, who died Jan. 22, 1760, aged 85, her name being signed as wife, with his, to a deed of Newport land, July 5, 1706.

Children by first wife:

1. Catherine,[2] m. Robert Wilcox before her father's will was made (1724).
2. ii. Thomas, b. 1703; d. Feb. 8, 1757.

Children by second wife:

iii. Sarah, bapt. before 1709; m. George Fitch, Sept. 2, 1720.
iv. Elizabeth, bapt. before 1709; unmarried at the time her father's will was made.
3. v. Robert, bapt. Sept. 10, 1710; admitted freeman at Richmond, 1731.

vii. Esther, m. (1) James Martin, Dec. 18, 1735; m. (2) William Peckham, at Philadelphia, Sept. 22, 1763.

xi. Patience, b. 1716; m. Paul Tew, May 3, 1734; d. Aug. 10, 1736.

2. Thomas[2] Lillibridge (Thomas[1]), of Richmond, married Mary Woodmansee, June 12, 1726.

* Especial acknowledgment is made to the Lillibridge genealogical correspondence collected by the late Judge Willard M. Lillibridge, particularly for details on some of the later branches of the Lillibridge family.

Bulkeley v. Yardeley

Bill [undated]

[Short Abstract] The plaintiff, Thomas Bulkeley of London, yeoman, shews that his late father, Thomas Bulkeley of Farndon co. Chester yeoman, was seised in his lifetime of messuages & lands in Farndon & Churton co. Chester. And being seised, about twenty years before, he mortgaged the said premises to one John Yardeley of Farndon, father of the defendant. The plaintiff states that he has often offered to redeem the mortgage, but the defendant has always refused to accept the money.

Answer [undated]

The defendant John Yardeley denies that the premises in question were mortgaged to his father, but asserts that they were sold to him. By his deed of feoffment dated the 16th of December [A. D. 1547] 1 Edw. VI., Thos. Bulkeley, the father, remised all claim to the said premises to John Yardeley the father. After the death of his said father, the premises descended to the defendant as of right they ought.

Yep -- I want ancestors with names like Rudimentary Montagnard or Melchizedick von Steubenhoffmannschild or Spetznatz Gianfortoni, not William Brown or John Hunter or Mary Abbott.
I want ancestors who could read and write, had their children baptized in recognized houses of worship, went to school, purchased land, left detailed wills (naming a huge extended family as legatees), had their photographs taken once a year -- subsequently putting said pictures in elaborate isinglass frames annotated with calligraphic inscriptions, and carved voluble and informative inscriptions in their headstones. I want relatives who managed to bury their predecessors in established, still-extant (and indexed) cemeteries.
>
I want family members who wrote memoirs, who enlisted in the military as officers and who served in strategically important (and well documented) skirmishes. I want relatives who served as councilmen, schoolteachers, county clerks and town historians. I want relatives who 'religiously' wrote in the family Bible, journaling every little event and detailing the familial relationship of every visitor.
In the case of immigrant progenitors, I want them to have arrived only in those years wherein passenger lists were indexed by National Archives, and I want them to have applied for citizenship, and to have done so only in those jurisdictions which have since established indices.
>
I want relatives who were patriotic and clubby, who joined every patrimonial society they could find, who kept diaries, and listed all their addresses, who had paintings made of their horses, and who dated every piece of paper they touched. I want forebears who were wealthy enough to afford, and to keep for generations, the tribal homestead, and who left all the aforementioned pictures and diaries and journals intact in the library.
But most of all, I want relatives I can find!!!

In August 1757 he was one of the soldiers who marched on the Alarm for the relief of Fort William Henry (ibid., p. 541). In 1758 he served under Capt. John Fry in the Expedition to Lake George (ibid., vol. 96, p. 105). On 2 April 1759 he enlisted in Col. John Chandler, Jr.'s regiment for service in the campaign under Gen. Jeffrey Amherst for the invasion of Canada (ibid., vol. 97, p. 120). In the Massachusetts records relating to the American Revolution he is mentioned successively as sergeant, ensign, lieutenant and, finally, captain.

His will, dated 10 April 1799, was filed for probate 6 Aug. 1811. He mentioned his wife Joanna; son William; daughter Eleanor, wife of Samuel Graves; and the children of his daughter Anna Eaton, deceased.

He was treasurer of Worcester in 1780 and 1781.

He married there, 1 April 1734, RACHEL HAYES. It is believed that she was the Rachel Hayes, daughter of James and Mary (Allen) Hayes, born in Norwalk, Conn., 4 March 1711.

He married first, in Lancaster, 17 Feb. 1729/30, MARY SAWYER, died 3 April 1733; and secondly, in Suffield, Conn., 28 Oct. 1735, ANNA AUSTIN, born there 16 Jan. 1708/9, died in Lancaster 23 April 1779.

Hezekiah Gates is described as an inn-keeper. He must have been a wealthy man for his real estate transactions were numerous.

He served as cornet of a troop of horse in military service under Capt. Ephraim Wilder, Jr., from 7 to 12 July, probably in 1748 (Massachusetts Archives: Muster Rolls, vol. 92, p. 122). In 1757 he is mentioned as lieutenant in Capt. John Carter's Troop of Horse, which marched on the Alarm for the relief of Fort William Henry in August (ibid., vol. 96, p. 181). In August 1761 he was commissioned Captain of the troop of horse (ibid., vol. 99, p. 27).

338. Elisebeth (Betsey), b. ca. 1766, bp. Dec. 8, 1766, supposedly m. David Dayton and lived in Morris County, N. J.

Notes: Henry Runyan's "Genealogy of the Osborn Family, 1755-1891" is on the above family. He says there was another sister, dau. of Jacob #137, who married Daniel Gray. This the compiler has been unable to verify. Jeannette Edwards Rattray in her "East Hampton History," p. 508, states that Jacob and Amy Osborn also had a daughter Rhoda, baptised 1774, and a daughter baptised 1779. These were probably daughters of Jacob, son of Jedediah #205.

141. Stephen Osborn, son of Thomas Osborn and Hester Schellinger, bp. June 20, 1736, at East Hampton, d. ca. 1794, m. 1st ———, July 19, 1766 (EHTR 5:593); m. 2nd ———, March 15, 1776 (NEHGR 44:268); m. 3rd at Hanover, N. J., Feb. 17, 1777, Marget Hoel (Margaret Howell?). She married in 1803 Timothy Mulford who had been previously married to Esther Osborn #330. Stephen Osbourn served in the Revolution in Capt. Obadiah Kitchell's company, Eastern Batt., Morris, Nov.-Dec. 1776, Col. Ford's Battalion. He also served in the Morris militia (Stryker, p. 708). Stephen Osborn is listed in the rateables for Hanover Township, Morris County, 1778-1793, and 1794-1797 as dec'd. Peggy, wife of Stephen Osbourn, was admitted as a member of the Hanover Presb. Church. Jan. 5, 1784. Stephen Osborn in his unprobated will dated Jan. 8, 1794 names wife Margaret, son Elias, and his daughter Esther Tappin and her husband Moses (Cory, Vol. III, Part I, p. 135).

Children (baptisms at East Hampton):

339. Elias Conkling, bp. March 27, 1763. This may be the Elias Osborn of Chatham Township who, with his wife Phebe F., sold 30 acres to Sarah Osborn of the same place, Oct. 21, 1828 (Morris Co. Deeds A3:1).
340. Esther, bp. 1764, m. at Hanover March 1793 Moses Tappin.

Mrs. Rattray in her East Hampton History, p. 496, indicates that the Stephen, born 1736, was a son of a Stephen, Jr. This is in error.

John Christian Harshall of Readington

BY KENN STRYKER-RODDA

Among the wealthier Germans of Hunterdon County scarcely mentioned in published accounts was John Christian Harshall (Harsell, Hassel, Hessel, &c.). The earliest found mention of him is the record in which "Christiann Hessel" appears as witness for the baptism of Catharina, daughter of Johannes Hofman and Margariet Anhuys, at the Reformed Dutch Church of New York, 26 Jan. 1729 (NYDCR-B, 489). As Christian Hasell he was naturalized, together with many other Germans, on 8 July 1730 (New Jersey Laws 1703-31, Ch.CXIX, "Law to Naturalize Germans"). As Christian Hassell, a freeholder of Readington, he voted for Abraham Vanhorne and Daniel Coxe for the General Assembly in 1738 (SnHS).

Probably because he never had to mortgage his property, the deeds for it were recorded only long after they were made, if at all. His earliest acquisition of land in New Jersey seems to have been a 150-acre tract in Reading (Readington) Township, next to the land of his father-in-law, "Andreue Redike," which was deeded to him by Daniel Coxe of Trenton on 30 Nov. 1731 for £150 "currant money of the said province at Eight shilling the ounts," but not recorded until 7 June 1796 (HnD 2:3). From other documents it appears that, in partnership with "Anderis Redericks" and Peter Yager, he purchased 447 more acres from the Coxe heirs on 7 Dec. 1751, which the partners divided by unrecorded releases on 9 March 1752. (Part of this property, in Lebanon Township, by a series of transactions came into possession of his son-in-law, Johannes Smith, from whom he repurchased 56 acres for £196 on 20 August 1765.) His other holdings can be determined from the gift-deeds made to his sons-in-law on the same day on which he made his will, 13 Sept. 1765:

Printed from Family Tree Maker, CD182 Family History: New Jersey Genealogies #1, Genealogies of New Jersey Families, Volume I, John Christian Harshall of Readington, © Broderbund Software, Inc., Banner Blue Division, September 26, 1998

To his son-in-law, John Smith, and his wife Christeen, Christian Harshall of Readington, yeoman, with the consent of his wife Elizabeth, deeded, "for love and affection," four parcels of land, totaling 274½ acres: the above-mentioned 150-acre tract to the northwest of Campbell Brook and the west of Andries Redicks; 52½ acres adjacent thereto, purchased of Coxe's heirs 21 March 1752; 57 acres in Readington purchased from the estate of Thomas Bowman 4 December 1759; and 15 acres adjacent to the first tract and Cambells brook, bought of Daniel Coxe 4 June 1736. These parcels were granted to the "longest liver" of the two, and entailed to their two eldest sons, excepting privileges in the first section granted by will to his wife. (HnD 23:389, recorded 12 December 1814 when the Smith heirs wished to dispose of part of the property.)

To his son-in-law, William Shafer of Lebanon Township, and wife Susana, similarly and with a similar entailment, two tracts: one of 149 acres in Lebanon and Reading townships bounded by Pircots Brook, land late of Antony Diredorf and the south branch of the Rariton; the other of 49½ acres, being part of the 447-acre tract before mentioned (HnD 9:40*ff.*)

Harshall's will, signed with a large H, made detailed and ample provision for his wife, including the right to use "the lower room of the present dwelling, known as the kitchen and the innermost part of the cellar." The inventory showed that he had £1,281.11.0 out at interest in addition to a considerable amount of personal property. As the will was proved on 1 March 1769, Harshall probably died in February of that year. It is not unlikely that he was buried on his farm, for we know there was a family burial plot there a few years later.

The house referred to in the will is almost certainly the one still occupied, and standing on the same short road near Stanton near which the Bandbox House is located. The kitchen and cellar rooms built into the hillside have been changed but little, although the upper two floors have been partially modernized. Known locally as the John Smith House, it was probably built by Harshall early in the 1730's.

In May 1768, as Christian Harsell or Harshal, he lent John and Jacob Smith £160 and £100 respectively on land in Amwell formerly belonging to their father, Matthys Smith (HnM 1:74,76). This John Smith was Harshall's second wife's son-in-law, as will be shown in a subsequent article.

Christian Harshall was twice married. His first wife, who was the mother of the three children mentioned in the will of his father-in-law, was Eleanor (Lena) Rederick or Rüdig, a daughter of Andreas (GMNJ 21:49*ff.*). Their marriage occurred after 20 February 1723 as Alburtus or Alburtis and others as Burtis. He served as Constable for Amwell Tp. from 1722 to 1726, and from 1720 on there are references to William Sr., and William, Jr. (HuCt Libers 1, 2 and 3). On Jan. 1-2, 1729, he conveyed to Peter Rockefeller, for £180. the 175 acre plantation where he had lately lived in Amwell. (WJD EF: 309). He was apparently living as late as 1732/3, when William Burtus, Sr., is mentioned as one of a large number of debtors to the estate of John Severns, dec'd, of Trenton, a native of Newtown. (NJA 30:424). The names of his children are wholly conjectural, as he left no will and no church, cemetery or Bible records of the family have been found.

15. (probably) James; at Court 1730. (HuCt 3:190).

9. JOHN[3] ALBERTUS, son of John (2), b. 1667-9; md. Sarah (?Allison or Ellison); d. Jan.,1709/10. He is frequently mentioned in Newtown records and was living at Maspeth Kills there as late as Apr. 19, 1708, when he sold his six tracts of land and meadow to Richard Betts, Jr., (Queens Co. Deeds, B-2:369) and soon after moved to White Hill, in Mansfield Tp., N. J., near the present Bordentown, where his "brother" Richard Ellison(Allison) had bought a plantation in 1695. (WJD B:588). The deed for his property is not recorded. He is described as yeoman or planter, and his will, Dec. 29, 1709-Mar.16,1709/10, divides his plantation between his two sons, John to have the part on the river, subject to his mother's life tenancy. The will provides for testator's daughters (not named) and an unborn child, and as executors names wife Sarah, brother James Laurence and brother Richard Ellison. The inventory of the estate, dated Jan.14,1709/10, totals £460: 14:4. (NJW:173C).

Children of John Albertus and Sarah (?Ellison):

+16. John,[4] b. abt. 169-; md. Elizabeth ———.

males under 16, and 8 females, a family group which can be identified easily with the number in Jacob's family at the time of Jacob's will dated in 1812. This knowledge, taken in conjunction with relative ages of his sons as derived from the 1800 and 1810 census records, makes it clear that he is identical with the Jacob beginning Ezra Stauffer's genealogy and not a Jacob of an earlier generation. On June 1, 1812, Jacob and Elizabeth Stauffer convey to their son David for consideration the land acquired in 1786.

Jacob's will, dated June 12, 1812, and proved November 10, 1820, names the two sons, mentions but does not name seven daughters. A codicil contains reference to daughter Elizabeth wife of Abraham Shaffer, who had previously married Andrew Eby. Son David and son-in-law Michael Weaver are executors.

Issue, order of birth uncertain:

i. Catherine, b. Oct. 30, 1771; m First Reformed Church, Lancaster City, May 26, 1795, Michael Weaver (Weber).
ii. Elizabeth, m. (1) Andrew Eby, b. Oct. 27, 1769, d. May 12, 1809; m. (2) Abraham Shiffer. See History of The Eby Family, 1889.
iii. Maria Ann, m. Joseph Ebersole.
iv. Susan, b. Aug. 25, 1783, d. Mar. 6, 1853, bur. Hull's Graveyard, near Pike Mennonite Church, east of Hinkletown, Penna.; m. (1) Samuel Bauman, m. (2) ———— Horst.
v. Judith, m. Simon Shantz.
vi. Jacob, b. ca 1775-1784, m. (1) Mary Weaver. Jacob removed to Virginia with his second wife.
vii. Barbara, d. s. p.
ix. David, b. March 18, 1788; m. Anna Weaver, b. Jan. 29, 1793. For further information about the descendants of David, and the family of his brother Jacob, the reader is referred to the E. N. Stauffer genealogy just mentioned.

II C. John and Mary Stouffer of Earl and Caernarvon Townships, Lancaster County, and North Middleton Township, Cumberland County

"Vice-Admiral Aubrey Wray Fitch US Naval Graduation 1906. Aviator. At Coral Sea, commanded TF11, flagship Lexington. After loss of this carrier under the tactical command of Admiral Fletcher, Fitch became commander of Saratoga's TF, arriving with her two days late for the Battle of Midway, then taking over command of the carriers. When Admiral Fletcher took over Saratoga for the Guadalcanal ops, Fitch became COMAIRPAC, governing the Pacific Fleet's carriers and planes. When Admiral Leigh Noyes was reassigned to this job, Fitch, in September took over from Admiral McCain as COMAIRSOPAC. Very energetically, Fitch organized the ground-based aerial operations in the Solomons, including the supply of Henderson Field with planes and fuel. Fitch stayed in his post through the Guadalcanal campaign, then, in August 1944, to become Vice Chief of Naval Operations (Air) at Washington, leading the Navy's administrational aspect of naval air power. Post-war, he became the first aviator in the office of Superintendebt of the US Naval Academy."
